Up to $250 to be paid

County to assist needy with large winter fuel bills

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

Help is on the way for many Fayette County residents who were financially unable to pay large fuel bills this past winter.

The Fayette County Welfare Department will begin taking applications Tuesday from low-income families hard hit by high utility bills. Families, which are deemed eligible, may receive up to $250 in federal funds.

Frank Stanley, director of the Fayette County Welfare Department, received official word Monday morning that applications could be accepted. The deadline for eligible families to submit applications is Aug. 12.

Fayette County will receive $51,128 of the $200 million in special crisis intervention funds allocated to Ohio by the federal government for the program.

Two types of households have program eligibility, according to the state guidelines.

The first type is households which have had their utility service discontinued or are threatened with shutoff because of large unpaid fuel bills.

These households may be eligible for the one-time payment of up to $250. Payments in this category shall be made directly to utility companies or fuel dealers.

Households in this category must present unpaid fuel bills or the notice to shut-off their utilities because of non-payment.

The second type is for families which can provide proof "of dire financial need as a result of having paid large fuel bills." A one-time payment of up to $50 will be made directly to families eligible under this category.

If more eligible families apply for the assistance than there are funds available, the money will be allocated on a priority basis.

The elderly whose utilities have been disconnected or whose fuel delivery has been terminated for failure to pay utility bills will receive top priority, according to the program guidelines.

The other categories in order of priority are:

—The elderly who are delinquent in their fuel payments;

—Low-income households in which utilities have been disconnected;

—Low-income households which are delinquent in their fuel payments;

—The elderly who are in dire need and must make prepayment of utility bills; and

—Low-income households which are in dire need and must make prepayment of utility bills.

All applications from the first priority category will be funded before applications in the second priority category are funded, and so on until all money has been expended.

Only households with income no higher than 125 per cent of the state poverty guidelines will be eligible for the program.

Maximum income guidelines for a non-farm household begins at $3,713 annually ($309 a month) for a family of one and increase to $9,713 annually ($809 a month) for a family of six persons.

Income guidelines for a farm household of one are set at $3,188 annually ($266 a month) and increase to $8,250 ($687 a month) for a family of six persons.

A household is defined as all members of a group of people who live in one housing unit and share utility bill payments. If two families living in one house are both responsible for utility costs, both families will be considered one household, according to the guidelines.

Families and households who feel they may be eligible for the federal assistance grants should check the income guidelines with the county welfare department.

Only Fayette County residents can apply for the federal funds through the Fayette County Welfare Department. Residents of other counties must make applications in their own counties.

Besides the $51,128 allocated to Fayette County, federal funds have been sent to the other 87 counties in the state.

Allocations for surrounding counties are Madison $38,018; Highland, $74,726; Clinton, $115,366; Greene, $89,147; Pickaway, $57,683; and Ross, $111,433.

Women, children released

Soviet jet skyjacked

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Two hijackers of a Soviet airliner released 20 women and children today but kept 50 male passengers hostage, a spokesman for the Finnish government announced.

Meanwhile, six Palestinians who hijacked a Kuwaiti airliner Friday surrendered Sunday at Damascus, Syria.

The Finnish Board of Aviation said if the two hijackers of the Soviet plane surrendered in Helsinki, they would be subject to automatic extradition back to the Soviet Union under a 1974 Finnish-Soviet anti-hijacking treaty.

The pair commandeered an Aeroflot jetliner with 79 persons aboard during a 175-mile flight from Petrozavodsk, the capital of Soviet Karelia, to Leningrad Sunday night. The pilot radioed Stockholm, Sweden, for permission to land there but instead came down at the Helsinki airport. It was thought he did not have enough fuel to fly to the Swedish capital 250 miles to the west.

Police surrounded the twin-jet TU134 and it was towed to a remote part of the airport. Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Stepanov and three Finnish cabinet members went to the airport to negotiate with the hijackers.

The Interior Ministry announced that the hijackers released the seven crew members Sunday night. This morning, at 6:35, they freed a woman and her infant child, and 2½ hours later released the 12 other women and six children aboard the plane, the government spokesman said.

No one was reported hurt. The hijackers presumably were Soviet citizens although their identity was not announced. They demanded that the plane be refueled and allowed to leave, but it was not known where they wanted to go.

It was the second hijacking of a Soviet airliner in six weeks. A 37-year-old mechanic named Vasily Sosnovsky took over a twin-engine Aeroflot AN24 on May 26 and forced the pilot to fly him to Stockholm. After he applied for asylum, the Swedish government refused to extradite him and said it would put him on trial.

The Soviet airliner was seized about eight hours after five Palestinian hijackers turned on their leader and forced him to surrender with them to Syrian police who guaranteed them "absolute safety." Two Arab officials and five British crew members of the Kuwaiti Airlines airliner were freed unharmed.

Armed with a submachine gun and other weapons, the Palestinians took over the Boeing 707 jet Friday after it took off from Beirut for Kuwait with 55 persons aboard.

The captives were freed in two batches during 25 hours of negotiations as the airliner sat at the Kuwait airport in temperatures that rose to 118 degrees. Kuwait's security chief and an official of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) volunteered as substitute hostages and went aboard with a fresh flight crew Sunday after the hijackers agreed to accept a safe-conduct flight to Marxist South Yemen.

Postal rate plan studied by board

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's plan to give letter-writing Americans a respite from postal rate increases faces the first of two hurdles today.

The Postal Service Board of Governors was scheduled to vote on a proposed new "citizen rate" on stamps. As part of a proposed dual-rate plan, the special consumer rate would keep the 13-cent stamp for personal letters while raising the cost of a first-class business stamp three cents.

If the board approves the plan, the new rates will then go to the Postal Rate Commission. If the commission takes no action in 10 months, however, the rates would take effect automatically.

The board also planned to act today on a recommendation by Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar to discount postage for magazines and newspapers that are sorted by zip code before arriving at post offices.

The citizen rate was proposed by President Carter, who told Bailar in a letter that consumers need some relief from postal rate hikes. He said Carter's interest in the citizens postal rate "obviously was a matter of critical significance."

Bailar told the board last Wednesday that the discounted rate would affect about 20 per cent of first-class mail. He said he hoped holding personal letters to the 13-cent-an-ounce rate in effect for the last 18 months would lead to public acceptance of efforts by the Postal Service to cut costs.

Various cost-cutting proposals, including a call for ending Saturday deliveries, are aimed at adding $2 billion in revenues for the Postal Service and virtually erasing its annual operating deficit.

Under the citizen rate plan, individual letter-writers would have to meet the following requirements: either the return or delivery address must be handwritten, both must include zip codes, both places must be in

Oil flow delayed by station blast

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Oil can be pumped over Alaska's 2,711-foot Thompson Pass, bypassing a blasted out pumping station, but the bypass plan won't allow the trans-Alaska pipeline to keep up with its full production schedule.

Officials of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. were expected to decide today when they could resume oil movement around the station, an industry source said. The decision hinges on reports from company engineers and federal agencies investigating Friday's blast, which caused no damage to the $7.7 billion pipeline.

One worker died and five others were injured when a high-pressure stream of crude oil spurted out of an open valve and ignited on contact with one of the jet turbines that power the pumps. The valve apparently was left open when workers were switching from one pump to another to clean an oil filter.

Oil flow was halted 30 miles south of Pump Station No. 8 — at about mile 518 on the 800-mile line — immediately after the explosion.

The decision to bypass the station would come after the installation of an unspecified piece of equipment flown in Sunday from Houston, the source said.

Under the Alyeska plan, the company would be able to pump oil across Thompson Pass without Pump Station No. 8, the source said. The pass is the highest remaining point oil must cross before reaching the port of Valdez.

If the bypass strategy works, pipeline flow could be boosted to "considerably above 600,000 barrels a day" by using some of the other 11 pump stations on the line, said Edward Patton, Alyeska's chief executive officer. But he suggested that the goal of 1.2 million barrels a day by the end of 1977 may have to be scrapped.

National Transportation Safety Board investigators were interviewing pipeline workers in an effort to pinpoint the cause of the explosion.

William Haley, a member of the NTSB, said the inquiry could result in recommendations for changes in operating procedures along the pipeline.

Haley said that the NTSB probe would not prevent Alyeska from pressing ahead with efforts to start up the oil flow within days.

Haley said it would be at least four months before the NTSB could issue a report on the probable cause of the explosion at the pump station about 41 miles southeast of Fairbanks. But he added that "we could make recommendations that we feel are necessary or appropriate prior to that time."

Neutron bomb, energy plan eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rigorous examination of President Carter's energy plan will occupy much of Congress' time this week, but at the top of today's Senate agenda is a vote on giving Congress the final say in adding the neutron bomb to the nation's nuclear arsenal.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., had earlier failed in an attempt to persuade the Senate to ban outright any deployment of the neutron bomb. A compromise he is sponsoring would permit either the House or Senate to veto a decision by Carter to go ahead with the weapon.

A proposal requiring both houses to veto the bomb was given a better chance of approval, however.

The neutron bomb, which relies on controlled radiation to kill enemy soldiers rather than the huge explosive power of other nuclear weapons, has been criticized as an addition to the arms race.

Proponents say it provides a needed weapon for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, whose European forces are outnumbered by Soviet and Eastern European forces.

As it returns from its 10-day Independence Day break, Congress has less than a month to work on a heavy legislative load before leaving town for the traditional August recess.

The Senate is due to vote this week on Carter's proposal to halt a controversial reactor project that would produce more plutonium than it consumes.

The President said earlier this year he wants to end U.S. development of such nuclear breeder reactors, such as the one planned for the Clinch River nuclear power plant, now under construction in Tennessee.

Carter said such facilities would provide an easy target for terrorists trying to build nuclear weapons.

Environmentalists say the plants are vulnerable to nuclear accidents.

Supporters of the reactor say Japan, the Soviet Union and western European nations are proceeding with their own

Villages, townships also have vacancies

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Nine major public offices in Fayette County are subject to election in November, but as yet very few persons have expressed any interest in seeking the positions.

Four seats on Washington C.H. City Council will become vacant in December, the Washington C.H. Board of Education will have two seats open, and the terms of three members of the Fayette County Board of Education will expire.

Additionally, seats on village councils and boards of public affairs in Bloomingburg, Jeffersonville, Milledgeville and Octa will be vacated. Trustee posts in each of Fayette County's 10 townships will also be subject to election.

Mrs. Mary Jean Jennings, director of the Fayette County Board of Elections, said the deadline for filing petitions for candidacy for municipal and township posts is 4 p.m. August 10.

The deadline for filing petitions for candidacy for seats on the Washington C.H. and Fayette County boards of education is 4 p.m. August 25.

The board of elections office, located on the ground floor of the Fayette County Courthouse, will be closed through Wednesday of this week in order that officials may attend an elections conference in Cincinnati.

Beginning Thursday, the board office will be open from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 until 4 p.m. daily. The office is closed Saturdays.

Mrs. Jennings said the deadline for filing bond issue proposals is August 10. Tax levy requests must be filed by September 9.

The terms of Washington C.H. City Council members Richard P. Kimmet, Mrs. Bertha McCullough, Willard W.

(Billie) Wilson and Ralph L. Cook expire December 31.

Cook, 1229 High St., is presently serving his fourth consecutive term on City Council, having been first elected in 1961.

Kimmet, 526 Rawlings St., was appointed to the City Council post last September to replace Eddie Fisher who resigned.

Mrs. McCullough, 431 W. Circle Ave., presently serving as City Council chairman, is completing her first full term on the city's legislative body, having been elected in 1973.

Wilson, 215 McKinley Ave., was elected in 1973 to his second City Council term.

None of the incumbents have filed for re-election.

Candidacy petitions for City Council have been filed by Homer F. Penwell, 230 Green St., and Gilbert (Bud) Hooks, 746 Washington Ave.

The terms of City Council members James F. Ward, John F. Morris and Joseph O'Brien do not expire until Dec. 31, 1979.

The two seats on the Washington C.H. Board of Education to become vacant in December are now held by Fred L. Domenico, 137 River Road, and Jerry Sheppard, 221 N. North St.

Domenico was elected in 1973 to his fourth straight term on the city board and Sheppard was appointed in August 1974 to complete the unexpired term of Philip M. Morrow.

Neither Domenico nor Sheppard have filed for re-election.

Fayette County Board of Education seats held now by Kenneth A. Payton, Wayne E. Arnold and Marion Waddle will be subject to the November 8 general election.

Payton was elected in 1973 to his second term while Waddle is completing his third term. Arnold is finishing his first four-year term.

No candidates have filed petitions for the three county board positions.

Four seats on the Bloomingburg village council and one on the village's board of public affairs will be open.

The council seats are presently held by James Johnson, Ronald Brown, John Fehl and Daniel H. Thompson. Only Thompson was elected to the council post, all others were appointed after resignations of incumbents.

The term of Gilbert H. Biddle on the three-member board of public affairs expires in December.

In Jeffersonville, the terms of village council members Eldon McBee, Wayne Rayburn, Fred Stires and Richard Thornberry will expire in December. McBee, Rayburn and Stires were appointed to the council and Thornberry was elected in 1973.

John Long's term on the three-member village board of public affairs will expire in December.

Terms on the Milledgeville village council expiring in December are those held by Steve Waddell, Anna M. Anderson, Richard Coates and Wahneta Haffne. Only Mrs. Anderson was elected, all others were appointed.

The terms of Octa council members William Gorman, Donald Hendricks, Elmer Kingery Jr., and Beatrice Roberts will expire. The term of Octa treasure Anna Gorman will also expire.

Two new trustees will be elected in each of the county's 10 townships in the November general election.

Ernest Jenks has filed for re-election to the Jefferson Township board of trustees. Kenneth Clouser is seeking one of two vacant posts in Perry Township and Eugene Cockerill is seeking a post on the Union Township board.

Ferguson Act repeal studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A House subcommittee will begin making "some changes" this week on a hotly contested Senate bill that repeals Ohio's strike prohibiting Ferguson Act and sets public employe bargaining procedures.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said he doesn't know what the changes will be, but key parts of the far reaching legislation already have come under fire from a number of majority Democrats in the House. Binding arbitration for police and firemen, as a strike alternative, is a major point of contention.

In an apparent offering of legislative courtesy, the House Commerce and Labor Committee will give hearings Tuesday to a pair of bargaining bills introduced by minority Republicans.

But the speaker said the "vehicle" will be the Democrat-sponsored measure before a commerce and labor subcommittee, headed by Chairman J. Leonard Camera, D-53 Lorain. It also meets Tuesday.

Camera's full committee has heard the Senate bill assailed at jam packed hearings over the past two weeks by numerous local government and education officials also with right-to-work groups and others.

One of the Republican proposals, by Rep. Scribner L. Fauver, R-54 Elyria, contains a comparatively new component of collective bargaining which could be substituted in the Senate measure for the binding arbitration. Some public officials have made the request or suggested it be considered.

They have complained bitterly about the Senate provision under which an outside arbiter could, they claim, order a settlement which went beyond the financial means of city or county governments.

Akron Mayor John S. Ballard lashed out at the provision last week in testimony before Camera's committee, saying he spoke for all the mayors in Stark County, all but two of whom — himself and one other — are Democrats.

Fauver's bill contains what is called a "last best offer" arrangement under which the arbiter would be forced to choose between what he judged the fairest of the last settlements proposed by management and labor. This way, either side would be presumed to have made an offer within its means, financial and otherwise.

Some opponent witnesses have strongly indicated that they would find the legislation much more easy to swallow if this change alone were made.

Telephone secrecy worrying Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, concerned about Soviet eavesdropping on telephone calls in the United States, will soon be given several proposals to preserve the secrecy of classified communications.

The President is expected to decide by the end of the summer how to protect such calls, one source said Sunday.

The problem stems from the relative ease with which the Soviet Union is reportedly listening in electronically, from properties it owns in Washington and elsewhere in the United States, on telephone calls transmitted through the air by microwave.

The advent of advanced computers has simplified the process considerably because the equipment can quickly sort through the various calls, selecting particular information.

"It is a problem and we're trying to figure out what to do about it," one White House official said. "But when you start to talk about it, you tell the other people how much you know about what they are doing."

A former U.S. government official, asked about the study now being done for the President by a government task force, said only that it involved classified material and was "not something we should talk about on the telephone."

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., concerned about the same problem, said the Carter administration should demand that the Russians stop the eavesdropping. He said the Russians are violating the rights of American citizens on U.S. soil.

Carter has been briefed on the problem by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security adviser, and by Stansfield Turner, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The task force report is still being drafted, one source said.

Another said the study involved "every government agency interested in intercepting messages or in not being intercepted." But he would not identify the agencies involved.

programs whether or not the United States cancels the Tennessee plant and a plutonium recycling facility at Barnwell, S.C.

Carter's ally in the Senate debate will be Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who plans an amendment to an Energy Research and Development Administration appropriations bill to allot $33 million to phase out the Clinch River plant.

Other senators will urge spending the full $150 million for further construction.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a supporter of eventual plutonium development, is expected to urge a compromise $75 million authorization with a year's construction delay to give Carter time to dissuade other countries from proceeding with their plans.

While the full House has few issues of broad public interest scheduled this week, its committees will be busy.

There are House-Senate committee meetings scheduled on the President's proposed Energy Department, with major differences to be ironed out between the two versions over how much control the White House will have in setting natural gas prices.

Other conference committees are to attack differences in legislation setting auto exhaust standards.

A House Commerce subcommittee has before it a proposal for an 18-month moratorium on the Food and Drug Administration's plan to ban saccharin, the artificial sweetener which tests have linked to cancer in rats and humans.

Three congressional committees will spend most of the week working on the Carter energy package. A critical test will come in the House Commerce Committee when it votes for a second time on whether to deregulate natural gas or to agree to a $1.75 ceiling for each thousand cubic feet of gas, as proposed in the administration energy plan.

At the same time, the House Ad Hoc Energy Committee will begin Wednesday to draw together the work of the established House panels, making recommendations to the full House.

The House committee is considered generally friendly to Carter, who may face a tougher test in the Senate Energy Committee, whose members begin their own first votes on the energy plan this week.

Skyjacking

But the Palestinians diverted the plane to Damascus.

A Syrian spokesman said the hijackers were persuaded to defy their leader, 36-year-old Abu Saed, who was refusing to give in unless all his demands were met. The hijackers had demanded release of 300 Arab prisoners of various Arab governments, including presumably some held by Syria.

The PLO condemned the hijacking and said it wanted Saed on charges of fraud and extortion. It said he was freed from a Beirut jail Thursday by agents of an Arab government which it did not identify.

The PLO said Saed was a member of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine General Command, one of the more radical guerrilla organizations. But other sources said Saed was a member of PLO chief Yasar Arafat's own Al Fatah guerrilla organization.

Claim Rhodes used influence to enrich, aid his friends

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has been accused of applying pressure to help his business associates get beneficial federal loans.

Rhodes allegedly intervened personally when a $962,000 federal grant was awarded for construction of a $1.4 million sewage treatment plant and sewer lines at the Ohio Transportation Research Center in Logan and Union counties, the Plain Dealer reported Sunday.

Donald M. Hilliker and Ralph J. Stolle own 1,700 acres adjacent to or near the center. Hilliker is Rhodes' partner in H&R Development Co. and Stolle is Hilliker's brother-in-law.

The newspaper said Rhodes wrote three letters to federal officials urging funding for the project.

Rhodes' expressed purpose was to encourage development and increase employment in the rural area, the Plain Dealer said.

The funds are provided by the U.S. Economic Development Administration and are available to the governor to use as he chooses following approval by the EDA.

Myron L. Dodge, public works development chief of EDA's Chicago office, said the application "got preferred treatment for what you might say were political reasons."

"This happened to be the governor of the state of Ohio's favorite project. He put some pressure on someone, and they decided to put it ahead of the rest of the projects," Dodge said.

Rhodes denied having applied any pressure and said no conflict of interest existed. The governor said Saturday that the application was handled like any other.

He said, "I don't own directly or indirectly one square foot of land in the area."

The newspaper said the $25 million research center was a longtime "pet project" of Rhodes. Although the center, opened in 1972, was intended to encourage economic development, it has not attracted any major industrial expansion. The Plain Dealer said.

In applying for the federal funds, center officials stated the sewer line project was expected to open the area immediately surrounding the center to industrial and commercial use.

Korean flood toll hits 206

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The flood toll in the Seoul area rose to 206 dead today but the number of missing was reduced from 147 to 85 as persons turned up alive and errors in tallying were corrected, the national flood relief center reported.

U.S. military authorities said there were no American casualties in the floods and landslides that followed 17 inches of rain Friday and Saturday. More rain was forecast as rescue workers continued to search for victims and southern Seoul and the suburb of Anyang. Many returned as the water receded Sunday, but nearly 20,000 persons remained in schools and churches.

Two rifles, calculator taken in home burglary

In a residential burglary reported to Fayette County sheriff's deputies Sunday morning, Glenn Overly, 6109 Eymann Road, stated someone entered his home Thursday between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. by breaking a small window out of the back door and unlocking it.

Removed were two .22 caliber Remington rifles and a calculator. One of the rifles was valued at $25 and the calculator was estimated at $12.

A pellet gun was stolen from a car belonging to Scott Tarbutton, 584 Brentwood Drive, sometime between late Friday night and early Saturday morning, according to another Fayette County Sheriff's Department report.

Tarbutton stated to sheriff's deputies that a Crossman 38T-177 caliber revolver pellet gun, valued at about $37 was discovered missing from under the front seat of his car when he arrived home about 2:15 a.m. Saturday. He said he had placed the gun there while in Columbus late Friday night. He returned to Washington C.H. about 1:30 a.m. Saturday and parked his car at the Club 22 tavern, 1500 U.S. 22-W. When he returned home, the gun was missing, the report stated.

In another theft incident, Washington C.H. police officers reported a $15 bicycle was stolen from Larry Graham, 603 Leesburg Ave. Graham had left the bike at Eymann Park along Millikan Avenue about 8 a.m. Saturday, according to the police report. When he returned about 3 p.m., the bicycle was missing.

A Sohio gasoline credit card, listed by the company as lost or stolen, was used to purchase $16 worth of gasoline Saturday night at Ken's Exxon service station, 1-71 and U.S. 35, according to Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

Mike Butts, a service station employee, told sheriff's deputies the card, issued to Sidwell Brothers, Inc., was presented to him by the driver of a red pickup truck about 8:55 p.m. Butts stated after the vehicle departed he checked on the status of the card and was advised it had been either lost or stolen.

The truck had Ohio farm license plates and was pulling a large fifth wheel trailer, according to sheriff's deputies. The front portion of the trailer was a camper and the back portion was a horse trailer, the report stated.

Two destruction of property reports were also filed by Fayette County sheriff's deputies over the weekend.

Mrs. Robert Gilbert, 6392 Greenfield-Sabina Road, told sheriff's deputies sometime between late Friday night and 1 a.m. Saturday someone tore her mailbox from its post and threw it in a ditch near her home.

An employee of the Miami Trace School District, Cecil Coates, repoted to sheriff's deputies someone broke a window on one of the buses parked at the school sometime between late Saturday night and early Sunday morning. No estimate of the damage was reported.

Schmidt enjoys Wisconsin tour

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt enjoyed a day at a lake in the Wisconsin woods and was surprised at the room for population expansion, says his host, Philip Hanft.

Hanft, a second cousin to Schmidt, said the chancellor had requested that they find time to motor to Hanft's cottage on Whitefish Lake, near Gordon, Wis., and about 50 miles from Duluth.

"He was intrigued by the fact there was so much vacant land, areas of woods without anything," Hanft told a reporter.

Schmidt arrived at Duluth by plane from Canada Saturday evening and was welcomed by a military honor guard from the nearby U.S. Air Force Base, although the chancellor has described this as a family visit and he did not want any fuss.

BARN DEDICATED — The Rev. David A. Redding, of Delaware, and Dr. Lois Lampe Zimmerman hold documents officially dedicating an old barn for community use. The barn, constructed around 1855, is located at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Laban Pierce, 13044 Reid Road, just south of Book-walter in Fayette County. The barn was dedicated Saturday afternoon and Rev. Redding, pastor of the Liberty Presbyterian Church in Delaware, was the speaker for the program arranged by Dr. Zimmerman.

Firemen extinguish grass blaze in Union Township

Washington C. H. firemen extinguished a grass fire in Union Township along Bloomburg-New Holland Road Saturday afternoon.

The blaze occurred near 1801 Bloomburg-New Holland Road about 3:25 p.m., according to the fire department's report. The cause of the fire was not determined.

In other incidents, firemen cleaned up a gasoline spill at 114 S. Fayette St., about 2:26 p.m. Saturday.

The spill was caused by a split in a rubber flex line in the engine of a 1972 model Dodge belonging to Hamilton D. McMullen, of Greenfield. No fire resulted from the leak and the vehicle was removed to a local service station. Washington C. H. firemen were also sent to the scene of a combine fire on Bogus Road about 6:40 Saturday evening. However, the fire was extinguished before they arrived and they were called back to the station while en route.

In one incident Sunday about 5:30 p.m., firemen investigated an electrical short in the wiring of a golf cart belonging to Dr. Charles R. Griffith, 620 Highland Ave., at Griffith's home. No fire resulted, according to the report, but the short caused an estimated $200 damage.

Pesticide plan eyed by experts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Chemical experts will be on hand July 28 for a pesticide applicator training program in fumigation and seed treatment at Ohio State University's Marion campus.

David Miskell of the school said the program is designed for elevators and seed producers who handle grain or work in seed treatment.

Researchers from the Dow Chemical Co. will work with the university's Cooperative Extension Service scientists in discussing topics such as insect identification, rodents and birds, safety and application of fumigants and grain fumigation.

There will be an optional session on seed treatment and the general exam material.

Steam threshers show scheduled

LONDON, Ohio (AP) — The annual Miami Valley Steam Threshers Association show opens this week at the Madison County Fairgrounds in London.

The event, billed as "Ohio's Largest Steam Show," begins Thursday, getting into full swing Friday evening with the traditional Heritage Holidays and Steam Threshers parade at 6:30 p.m.

No injuries reported

Officers investigate three minor mishaps

Area law enforcement agencies reported three minor traffic accidents occurred Sunday with all persons involved escaping injuries.

In a rear-end collision on E. Court Street near North Street, about 2:25 p.m., Jane S. Bruce, 16, of Clarksburg, was cited by Washington C. H. police officers after her car struck another vehicle which was stopped in traffic.

The driver of the other car was James W. Landrum, 60, of 321 Rose Ave. Miss Bruce told police officers the brakes on her vehicle malfunctioned. She was cited for being unable to stop in an assured clear distance ahead.

In a single-car accident reported to Washington C. H. police officers, Steven A. Yahn, 20, of 734 High St., told the investigating officers he fell asleep at the wheel, ran off Circle Avenue, some 280 feet west of S. Main Street, and struck a tree about 3 a.m.

The officers cited Yahn for failure to control.

Charles K. Peterson, 21, of Wilmington, reported to Fayette County sheriff's deputies he was westbound on U.S. 22 about 1:50 a.m. when an eastbound car went left of center forcing him into a guardrail just east of Cline Road.

The eastbound vehicle left the scene without stopping, according to the sheriff's department report. Peterson's car was only slightly damaged.

Restoration of farm under way

ORRVILLE, Ohio (AP) — An aged and weather-beaten farmhouse built by William and Barbara Barnet in 1818 was discovered among the land the University of Akron bought several years ago to build a branch campus in Wayne County.

Orrville residents, headed by Frances J. Sandrock, began restoring the farmhouse and acquiring other historic buildings and artifacts a year ago. Their goal is a "living history" farm complex as it would have looked at the turn of the century.

But the story behind the oak structure has a heritage as rich as its remains.

The 162-acre farm, built in what was then an uninhabited oak forest, was owned by the Barnet family for 15 years.

In 1833, the property was sold to John Hoover, who owned the farm until horsebroker Charles Fetzter bought it in the early 1900s.

Fetzter was a central figure during horsetrading's heyday, when Orrville reportedly was the leading horse-auction center between Chicago and New York.

One legendary resident of Orrville, Chris Weyer, supposedly once sold 700 horses in 700 minutes.

James R. Fetzter, 72, of Wooster still remembers the days he spent at the Barnet farm as a child with his three sisters.

"In those days, you know, horses were brought in from the west. People in Orrville used to break horses for a living, and buyers came from cities all around to buy trained horses to be harnessed and used for work."

In 1852 Ohio's legislature passed the first law in the United States for the regulation of working hours of women and children. However, the act then was loosely drawn and of little value.

Priorities for bumpees

Alfred E. Kahn, the new chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, has been talking tough about the airlines' practice of overbooking flights to offset no-shows. "I damn well want to be convinced," he said at his first news conference as CAB chief, "that it's impossible to get to a system in which you have some rational way of choosing who gets bumped and who does not."

That oft-cited responsive chord is well and truly struck in many an air traveler by this challenge to the industry. For at present rational judgment is in scarce supply when it comes to making such decisions.

Kahn proposes what may at first thought seem impracticable - a system "in which every bumpee is voluntary; that nobody gets bumped who's unwilling to be bumped." One might suppose that this would simply result in an impasse, with everyone clamoring to be among the chosen.

But as Kahn points out, CAB rules provide for compensation of bumped travelers who are not gotten to their destination within two hours of the original scheduled arrival time. The chairman believes - rightly we think - that some travelers under no great pressure to reach a destination at a given time might choose to accept the prescribed compensation and yield their seat to someone else more urgently in need of it.

What he is calling for, basically, is a clearly stated position which acknowledges that some passengers may have a more compelling need than others to be on a given flight. A system of rational priorities, in short. The airlines should take the hint - if Kahn's blunt words can be so delicately described - and set up such a system without delay.

A WORD EDGEWISE....By John P. Roche

A very strategic cruise

One of the exhilarating things about Jimmy Carter's modus operandi is the novelty each day brings. It was always hard to find Henry Kissinger's true objective - you just heard someone tunneling underground - but the question with Jimmy's improvisers is, "Who's at bat today?" American policy towards Israel, for example, did two back-flips and a cartwheel in three days: when the dust cleared, there stood President Carter saying our policy hadn't really changed and he could not tell a lie, Zbig Brzezinski flubbed it. This was accompanied by a new first: the State Department claimed it had modified an anti-Begin statement. (The normal battlefield has the Arabs and the State Department on one side, and the Israelis and the White House on the other.)

With this acrobatic performance as background, it was anybody's guess what the President would do with the B-1 bomber. He had been pondering the issue in silence, though leaks to right of him and leaks to left kept the outcome in doubt to the last minute. Defense decisions are not comparable to those on the general foreign policy front. You can get away with half a policy towards, say, the Seychelles, but you can't order production of half-bombers. However, Mr. Carter cut it, and cut it clean: keep the B-1 at the prototype level and go with strategic cruise missiles.

A number of my friends, who adore airplanes, were dismayed. But if it's any comfort to them my guess is the Soviets were even more appalled. Their strategists must by now be quite bored with the American pitch for a new plane that will come in at over twice the speed of sound and escape their radar. They heard this song before - it was precisely the pitch made over a decade ago for the F-111, which still fits the specifications. Indeed, the F-111 can fly lower and faster than the B-1. Its load is a quarter of the B-1's and its range is half, but the latter can be handled by aerial refueling.

But getting away from the specifications of aircraft, what is all this business about "flying under Soviet radar?" At the moment Boeing 707s are being equipped with huge panicles to convert them to AWACS (airborne warning and control systems) and, if NATO ever gets its act together, a dozen or more will be wandering around the skies of Western Europe with radar looking down. Their function? To spot, say, Soviet Backfires "flying on the deck under NATO radar." Are we to assume the Soviet Union has missed all the discussion of AWACS and not devised an airborne radar system of its own?

However, assuming the Backfire could sneak in under our radar, or the F-111 under theirs, how in the world can planes sly "under" our respective satellites? I heard on reliable authority an American satellite picked up the Israeli C-130s on their visit to Entebbe, though the news was not released to the Associated Press. In short, the case for the B-1 is essentially fluff and we hardly need to shoot $100-plus million per plane to assuage the Air Force's ego. (I hold no bias against the USAF: recall I opposed those gigantic nuclear carriers the Navy wanted for the next battle of Midways.) Indeed, I get quite cross with some of my friends who otherwise share my conviction we need a strong military defense. They are such patriots for a new weapon's system. I swear if the Army developed a nuclear tipped cross-bow belt, there would shortly be a line around the block acclaiming it the "breakthrough in guerrilla warfare." I also resent apocalypticism: when somebody comes rushing in breathless to say the Russians are putting their factories underground and emphasizing civil defense, my reaction is that a nation which can't run an economy aboveground is free to burrow.

However, in opting for the strategic cruise missile Mr. Carter has taken a quantum jump in terms of deterrence. Those things are incredible. They can be launched from virtually any platform, amble off for over a thousand miles, and land within 30 feet of a target. They can take nuclear or conventional warheads, and - unlike planes - really spook the opposition's radar: they're small, wander along at about 600 miles an hour extremely close to the ground or water, and their radar "thumbprint" is almost identical with that of a large bird! They also cost less than $1 million each.

For those who understand cruise technology - at which, because of our capacity for miniaturization, we are several generations ahead of the Soviets - it has been clear that Moscow's main goal at SALT is to sideline these astounding delivery vehicles (until, of course, they catch up). This Mr. Carter has now frustrated. His decision should be applauded not merely because he saved all that money, but because in terms of the strategic balance he has put the United States back in the game of "competitive coexistence."

Fish payments made to state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has collected more than $16,000 in recent payments for the death of fish and wild animals resulting from pollution to Ohio streams. The largest of seven claims was $11,252 paid by Sohigro of Conover, Miami County, for 47,671 fish killed in May 1976 by a soybean herbicide in the East Branch of Lost Creek. A total of 18 claims totalling $28,636 has been collected so far in 1977.

"AS UN AMBASSADOR YOUNG WOULD SAY---"

Smoking complaints on planes continue

WASHINGTON (AP) - Can it be that non-smokers irritated by their puffing neighbors in a jetliner are sometimes reacting to nothing more than the sight of the smoke?

It's possible, say airline engineers who've researched the best way to keep smoking and non-smoking passengers satisfied.

Officials of anti-smoking organizations cite thousands of complaints from their members and instances of people who became sick or fainted from smoke in airline cabins. But a spokesman for Western Airlines, which is conducting the research, and Boeing, which makes many of the commercial jetliners in use today, say cabin air is recycled continually.

A Boeing official said all of the air in the cabins of the giant 747s is changed every three minutes.

And Forrest Mulvane of Western said that, in 727s flying at 30,000 feet, cabin air is changed 4.4 times a minute. In the larger 707 it is changed 3.2 times a minute at 30,000 feet, he said.

John Banzhaf of Action on Smoking and Health, a non-smokers rights group, said the air is merely run through a small filter and then fed back into the cabin, still containing some smoke.

"Baloney, pure baloney," responded an industry spokesman. "That's just not the way these machines are built to operate," he added.

He said the stale air is completely sucked from the cabin and replaced by fresh outside air.

Mulvane said the system used by Western, which is similar to others in the industry, uses totally fresh air for each change.

By contrast, Mulvane said, the usual standard for a residential room air conditioner calls for only 20 per cent fresh air on each recycling.

Mulvane said both Boeing and Western have done tests to determine the best way to seat smoking and non-smoking passengers.

School receives top manuscripts

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) - The man who gave the world "The Peter Principle" has donated manuscripts of his two best-selling books to Washington State University, a school spokesman said.

Laurence J. Peter became a celebrity in 1969, when "The Peter Principle" was published. It outlines his theory that every employee in every organization eventually rises to his or her own level of incompetence.

The manuscript of that book and a sequel, "The Peter Plan" are being turned over to the university where Peter received a doctorate in education in 1963.

CONSCIENTIOUS MOM
DEAR MOM: Please read for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for saying it wasn't "sissy" for a boy to babysit. I'm a young woman who did a lot of babysitting during my high school years. When I was asked to babysit, and had a date, I'd recommend my brother who was two years younger than me. He soon ended up getting more jobs than I. The word got around that he was very entertaining, and the kids always behaved perfectly with him.

Now my brother is married and has a 2-year-old daughter. He's an exceptional father, and I feel it was because of all the time he spent around children. I have no children yet, but when I do, I hope I can raise them as well as my brother is raising his.

BONNIE

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter from a young man whose fiancée's father told him he hoped he would get some "experience" before marrying his daughter.

You answered in your usual witty way: "Do fish have to be taught to swim?"

Unfortunately, Abby, fish don't swim for pleasure, but husband and wife do.

The bride's father was concerned about his daughter, and felt that "experience" was the answer.

Later you wrote, "There are no 'frigid-dears'-only clumsy men." I'm sure the father felt the same way, and was hoping for something better for his daughter.

What a shame you didn't tell the young man there are some excellent books that could tell him all he needs to know.

I married a man like myself and had no previous sexual experience, but thank God, he could read.

MISSING NOTHING

DEAR MISSING: I hope you didn't miss the column in which I recommended premarital counseling as well as getting some good books on the subject.

DEAR ABBY: This may come under the heading of etiquette, but what does a woman say when a man says, "Thank you," after having intimate relations?

Last week this happened to me and I was dumbfounded. Should I have said, "You're welcome"? Or should I have thanked HIM in return? After all, I got as much out of it as he did. What should I say if this comes up again?

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: If it comes up again, say, "Don't mention it."

CONFIDENTIAL TO READERS.

Garden club holds meeting

Mrs. Gilbert Hooks conducted the meeting of the Washington Garden Club on the lawn of her home, when reports were presented and roll call answered with a Bicentennial memory.

Mrs. Jean Barnhart, reported on the Nature Study Camp, and dates of coming events were announced: Farmers Market for July 21 with the club having table 10 between Market and Temple streets. Gardeners Day Out will be Sept. 29.

Exhibits for the Fayette County Fair were discussed for July 28. The Specimen show is open to the public this year, and all interested residents are encouraged to bring their specimen flowers so as to share their beauty with Fair goers. The show will be July 26. The Council meeting was reported by Mrs. Robert Wilson.

Mrs. Margaret Willis presented the horticulture hints. She discussed summer blooming of hardy flowers which are Perennials. Perennials are flowering or foliage plants with roots that live from year to year. Their tops may or may not die back in the winter. They give color to gardens in shady spots and in front of shrubs. They remain colorful in the spring and throughout the growing season. Some flower the first year of growth.

They dwell in most parts of the United States. Among the most popular of the garden perennials are delphinium, alyssum, hollyhock, Columbine candytuft, carnation, and primrose. To grow perennials successfully prepare soil in flower beds thoroughly starting with the plant or the seed. Some prefer to purchase started plants. Some enjoy watching growth from seed. These seeds may be grown or started inside as early as March then put out as the weather permits. Perennial garden plants set out too early may be killed by frost. Early spring growth is important for survival of many perennials. Do not consider perennials as permanent plants. Replanting, dividing of old plants, and preparing the soil are essential for vigorous flowering plants. It is best to remove all spent or faded blooms so seeds will not form.

The program for the monthly meeting was "Make friends with your lawn", presented by Mrs. Robert H. Wilson. She stated that too much has been written in recent years about lawns, making the whole subject seem unnecessarily complicated. Too often recommendations and advice have been based on what is desirable on golf courses. America's most extensive turf grass providing ground. The home lawn is a different affair altogether and really a reasonably simple one. It demands neither a lot of fancy equipment nor a shelf of miracle preparations and all purpose remedies. It does take a little time and it does represent a respectable investment. There is no question about importance of lawns in our life. Lawn grass is now a billion dollar crop. The value of acreage on which turn grass is grown probably exceeds the value of all the corn land in the nation. The most important aspect casts its shadow upon your piece of local soil and your always different climate. The problem is to decide what are the basic principals of your lawn. Basic principals of lawn culture are behind the obvious success of an expensive lawn. Before attempting to establish or improve a lawn one should understand which grasses succeed in what region, in which exposures and soils and how to handle planting and maintenance.

Plant cool climate grasses in the fall so they would be well rooted by winter and ready to rise in good health when called forth by lengthening days of spring. Since soils are generally more workable in the autumn, not being as sticky and soggy as in the spring, it is a good idea to sow the bluegrasses even if temperatures have become too low for sprouting. The seed will remain unharmed thru the winter, ready to go with the first suitable weather of spring. If some seed washed away, it is reasonable easy to reseed the damaged spots by an inexpensive over seeding. This procedure does not require as much watering.

Spring maintenance begins with raking as soon as the frost is out of the ground and before the grass starts to grow. The next step is to loosen the surface of the areas harmed by rodents, rake, then reseed. The soil must be kept moist until the seed germinates. The third step is to cultivate worn areas to 6 inches deep, reseed, the keep moist. Next use an areator or rake easily to loosen the soil in areas that usually dry out when summer drought hits. The fifth step is to apply organic lawn food in the early spring releasing the nutrient slowly and feeding the lawn through the growing season. Next, water the lawn in the spring, if the weather is drier than usual. The roots, now establishing themselves, need plenty of moisture. In building a lawn we think first of soil and seed bed them of the kind of grass we are to plant and aids to its early establishment. Here we might mention that ordinarily fewer pains need to be taken for grass than for other garden plants. Even poor soil, properly fertilized and watered can support a good growth of grass. This grass in turn improves the soil as its small roots permeate anything from tight clay to loose sand. To sum up what has been said, perfect soil for growing grass would have these qualities of sufficient humus, organic matter to retain food and water and encourage the growth of roots with sufficient porosity to let air and water into the soil. Air is needed so beneficial soil bacteria can do their work. Water of course is vital. Where water goes the roots will follow. The deeper the roots the better the lawn.

Mrs. Wilson insists there has to be beautiful lawns as well as friendly lawns. The members were served cooling refreshments by Mrs. Gilbert Hook, President and host, and Mrs. Jesse Robinette, co-host. The game prize was won by Mrs. Dale Merritt. The door prize was won by Eulalia Wade.

It contained several live plants and a branch on which hung small kitchen utensils. It was presented to the guest of honor. A bride doll was also presented to Miss Dowler.

The bride's colors, pink and blue, were used throughout the home in the decorations and in the refreshments. The invited guests were Mrs. Helen Dowler, mother of the bride, Mrs. Maryon Yeoman, mother of the groom, Mrs. Roscoe Shasteen, grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Dale Thornton and daughters, Mary Jo and Diane, Mrs. Ronald Dowler, Ms. Ronald Campbell, Mrs. Russell Hawkins, Mrs. Joe Campbell, Mrs. Jack Cabbage, Mrs. John McFadden, Mrs. Donald Hyer, Mrs. Karl Harper, Mrs. Harold Foster, Mrs. Chris Campbell and daughter, Tracy, and Miss Ann Campbell.

Obesity, behavior and smoking increase risks for disease

Physicians must come to recognize that vulnerable patients need treatment in advance of symptoms, states the director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute's Heart Disease Study in Framingham, Mass., William B. Kannel, MD. "Control of high blood pressure prolongs lives, delays congestive heart failure and prevents strokes," he writes in Postgraduate Medicine, a medical journal. Persons with elevated blood cholesterol levels should be treated, he adds, and to determine how vigorous the treatment should be, he suggests that the doctor take into account other elements of the "cardiovascular risk profile."

Although proof is lacking, it is generally assumed that therapy for elevated blood cholesterol levels will slow up hardening of the arteries and may cause regression of moderately advanced lesions in man, as it has been found to do in animals. Dr. Kannel explains. He advises that diet, weight control, and the use of drugs can bring about moderate control of cholesterol levels.

The doctor may prescribe a diet low in cholesterol and saturated fat, or suggest other dietary measures, depending on the individual patient, and the particular kind of cholesterol problem, as determined by laboratory testing. In one type, restriction may consist mainly of reduction of calorie and alcohol intake. Others will benefit from drug therapy, which is also determined by the kind of cholesterol problem involved.

Since publication of the article in Postgraduate Medicine, two new medications have become available. Once called Colestid, is in powder form. The other, Lorelco, in tablet form, has a chemical formulation unlike others available todate for this problem. It is packaged in what the company that makes it available calls a "Convenience pack" which resembles a flat checkbook cover. Inside the folder the days of the week are marked off. Remembering to take a medication has been found to be a problem for the traveler, the person who is taking more than one medication, or for anyone who is just forgetful.

In his article, Dr. Kannel warns that persons who are candidates for cardiovascular disease because of elevated cholesterol levels, diabetes or high blood pressure are especially vulnerable if they smoke cigarettes. Other "influential factors to consider" are obesity and behavior patterns.

He describes "Type A behavior" as characterized by "excessive competitive drive, preoccupation with deadlines, chronic impatience, a strong sense of time urgency, and work orientation."

Dr. Kannel concludes that "until more data on the efficacy of the measures advocated for the prevention of cardiovascular disease become available, physicians must decide for themselves whether to recommend these measures to patients." In any event, he observes, "the measures advocated are also good health practices that have other benefits."

Creative financing hits business world

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In the computer age of financing, with deals becoming more creative and sophisticated, the old country doctor approach to investment banking is giving way to the specialist.

On a recent transaction, said a Merrill Lynch man, the specialist team consisted of experts in commercial paper, industrial revenue bonds, private placements and leasing. Coordinator was the lead investment banker.

Not too many years ago one investment banker, dealing with a corporation's chief financial officer and chief executive, might have guided most of the financing needs of a company.

At Merrill Lynch, where various investment units have just been integrated into a Capital Markets Committee, some executives think the new competition in sophistication is more significant than talk of a capital shortage.

Times have changed. Companies that used to come into the capital markets once every two or three years now seek financing two or three times a year, said William Schreyer, executive vice president-capital markets.

Competition for money is intense. Plants today cost much more than just a decade ago, and the federal government is heavily into the market, competing for lendable funds because of its big deficit.

New regulations concerning pollution control, strip mining and reforestation add to the competition. So does the increasing competition for capital by foreign firms. So also does the need for energy exploration.

Competition in the use of money also has intensified; more so than before a company's success might depend on the use of creative rather than conventional financing. Asset financing, lease financing and the like are more common.

Competition also is growing among investment bankers for a piece of the action. The adviser who can come up with the most creative financing — that is, with the most money at the least cost — captures the business.

Equally demanding are lenders, who often seek tax shelters. "Any areas where the tax law is involved usually give rise to creativity," said J. Arthur Urcioli, managing director of the Capital Markets Group.

Urcioli lists five distinct ways in which a health care facility can be financed. Three of these involve federal programs. The other two involve financing in the tax-exempt markets, by creating a health authority that issues bonds or by a municipality itself issuing them.

"Around here," said Schreyer, "some ask are you precomputer or postcomputer," and to be sure, the electronic computer has permitted financing refinements that might have been dreamed yesterday but are being realized today.

The computer is both symbol and mechanical heart of the new financing, of which Merrill Lynch seeks a larger share by centralizing various units in the Capital Markets Group.

Schreyer, who heads the group, sees the new arrangement as being customer rather than product-oriented, an approach which merchandisers in some other lines might think is somewhat late in coming.

Another advantage is also sought, said Schreyer. "We have a great sales force," he said without hint of pride or modesty. "But we also have great talent in other areas which we'll be trying to utilize more now."

With its sales force backed by the expertise of specialists, Merrill Lynch, already the biggest factor in capital markets, is convinced it can obtain an even larger share.

That market, it estimates, will require the raising of $47 billion in corporate financing, and $100 billion in federal, state and municipal financing, over the next 12 months.

It will be assembled in packages so intricate, so sophisticated, that it will be difficult for any one individual, pre or postcomputer, to conceive, structure or understand all of them.

State to penalize departing firms?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Industries which decide to move out of Ohio would have some financial responsibilities, if a bill being proposed by a state senator becomes law.

He says they should not be able to pick up and leave without regard to the economic hardships that would be left behind.

Freshman Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-16 Columbus, is offering the bill which he planned to discuss at a new conference today, before its introduction.

His bill provides that large corporations deciding to leave the state would have to give two years' notice. Additionally, it requires such companies to give one week of severance pay to each employee for each year of seniority.

Schwarzwald said "I think this legislation is an extremely positive step in helping those individuals and companies affected by plant shut-downs."

Under the Columbus lawmaker's bill, departing industries would have to provide for relief payments to communities amounting to 10 per cent of the previous year's payroll.

Schwarzwald said Ohio has lost nearly 150,000 jobs in the past decade because of closings and the movement of jobs outside the state.

Scheduled to appear with him at the news conference is Ira Arlook, executive director of the Ohio Public Interest Campaign (OPIC), a nonprofit public interest group which said it will begin a statewide campaign for support of Schwarzwald's bill at a rally in Cleveland this afternoon.

The rally is slated at the outdoor lighting plant of Westinghouse Electric Corp., which informed its 275 salaried and hourly employees last month that it will phase the operation out over the next two years.

Schwarzwald's bill is in for sure opposition, based on comments published this weekend by the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The newspaper quoted George Dobrea, vice president for government affairs of the Greater Cleveland Growth Association, as saying "any company would want to think twice before coming to Ohio under the restrictions in that proposal. A company's inability to predict long term profitability, alone, would act as a deterrent under those conditions."

Schwarzwald denied that his bill would be punitive to business or that it would be "unfairly burdensome."

Hard luck story bad 2nd time

SEATTLE (AP) — A hitchhiker who conned a Seattle police detective out of $3 last April found the same hard-luck-story doesn't work twice — not when it's told to the same person.

Detective Douglas Dills says a 42-year-old hitchhiker gave him a hard luck story, saying he had just arrived from California, didn't have a penny in his pocket and hadn't eaten for three days.

The hitchhiker said he was looking for a job but nothing had turned up.

Dills gave the man $3.

Last Friday, the two met again and the hitchhiker repeated his plea. This time Dills arrested the man on a charge of soliciting for private gain.

Dills told the man one part of his story seemed true — he definitely had bad luck.

Reagan speaks at Ohio rally

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Republicans should stop "factionalizing and giving each other political saliva tests," says former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Reagan appeared Saturday at what was billed as a "Republican Revivalism" rally with Gov. James Rhodes and other state party leaders. The rally drew about 3,000 persons.

Reagan told the crowd the GOP should welcome ethnic and minority groups, giving them leadership positions.

He said polls show most people now believe in the tenets of the GOP as enunciated in its platform.

Student vacation ends up in court

NEW WATERFORD, Ohio (AP) — A trip that started out as a vacation in Florida may end up in Washington, D.C. — in the Supreme Court.

It all started last winter when farmer Leonard Ridzon took his family south for three weeks — against the wishes of the East Palestine School District — to escape the bitter weather.

As a result, Ridzon's older children, Leonard, 13, and Laurie, 12, were kept after school several days this spring to make up the work they missed. That didn't bother Ridzon because "it was to make up work."

A different policy in the elementary school kept his son Robert, then 8, inside during 12 recess periods — two for each day of school missed.

Ridzon felt that was "strictly punitive" because Robert "was not tutored" — although Ridzon's wife said the boy did receive "some spelling and stuff" — and that it was "cruel and unusual punishment" because his son had nothing to say about the family vacation.

So Ridzon went to court for an injunction against the school board because he believes "nobody can punish somebody for someone else's actions."

Judge Richard Kennedy, Columbiana County Common Pleas Court, agreed with the school board, however.

"We argued the board had the right (to order the makeup), and that if it did not have control then parents could take their kids out for an unreasonable time for almost any reason," said East Palestine City Solicitor Robert Hartford, who defended the school board.

Ridzon filed on June 28 an intent to appeal the decision to the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"I will probably take it to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary," he said.

"There is nothing in the rules that gives the board the authority" to detain children, Ridzon said. "I think the board oversteps its bounds when it gets into policing things. They have no right to police. There is a provision to take parents to court. If the kid was truant as they allege, they should have proceeded against me instead of the kid."

Dr. Barnard may retire soon

DETROIT (AP) — South African heart surgeon Dr. Christiana Barnard will retire in a year or two because his hands are severely crippled by arthritis, according to the Detroit News.

In an interview appearing in Sunday's editions, Barnard said his hands are almost useless in the delicate human heart transplants he pioneered on Dec. 3, 1967.

"I can't continue much longer. This arthritis is causing excruciating pain in both hands," he said.

Barnard, 54, said he has had arthritis for 20 years.

"Professionally, I've done about as much as I can, gone about as far as I can go. There are so many other things I'd still like to do yet. I have a young family and I'd like to have enough time and energy left to see them grow up."

Motor fuel tax increase noted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) More than $36 million in motor fuel taxes was collected during May, an 8 per cent increase— nearly $3 million—over May, 1976, the Ohio Department of Taxation reports. Nearly $900,000 was refunded to motorists, leaving $35.7 million in net taxes. The tax was collected on 465 million gallons of gasoline, and 57 million gallons of special fuels. The department has collected more than $373 million from the motor fuel tax so far this year.

Fries, now making an ABC movie, "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," cautioned that "Rumor" is a long way from certain broadcast. CBS hasn't even advanced production funds yet.

Right now, he said, he's only in the process of hiring a writer to develop Caputo's book into story and script form for CBS. After that, CBS brass must inspect the wares and decide whether to start filming, and that probably wouldn't start until next year or 1979, he added.

Still, Fries was asked what at least sparked CBS' interest in "A Rumor of War" after such a long absence of network willingness to put any Vietnam-based drama on the air.

He cited two reasons. One is a rash of theatrical movies now being made about the war or its consequences, such as "Apocalypse Now," "The Boys in Company C" and "Dog Soldiers."

Reason two, he added, is that painful public memories of America's longest war are no longer as acute as before.

"I think the situation's really softening, I think there's a new attitude now," Fries said. "They (networks) don't feel it's as much a problem as subject matter as before."

"With motion pictures getting into the area of Vietnam, there's a general feeling that people are prepared to deal with the subject now. It's the old story — time eases pain."

Ironically, the recent Vietnam film rush — particularly Francis Coppola's much-discussed, $25 million "Apocalypse" — is one reason why Caputo's book went to TV and not movie, Caputo's agent says.

The agent, Aaron Priest, says he tried to interest theatrical film makers in it, but they said "Apocalypse" was going to be the biggie and another war film wouldn't make it.

Or, he added, they wanted to see how Coppola's film did at the box office before they'd discuss "Rumor."

"And it'd be two years later, all the interest is gone, and you're going to wind up not selling the book," he said.

Another irony: While "Rumor" is selling well, in its fourth printing, Priest says Vietnam war books, largely shunned by publishers in recent years, still aren't in great demand in the literary market place of New York. —

Consumer plans big question

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest guessing game in economic circles today is what the consumer will be doing in the marketplace over the next few months.

Nobody really can say with certainty. No economist can admit that to be the case.

After painfully hacking one's way through tangled acres of analyses and great silos of statistics, about the only possible conclusion that can be reached is that, yes, it is just a guessing game.

And yet the guesses must be made, because the expansion's continuation depends on consumer buying attitudes. Food, clothing, automobile, furniture production schedules demand such information.

The conventional view is that consumer buying has done its job of getting the economy moving forward and that now it must take a rest while business spends to expand its plant and equipment.

Business investment has been slow to pick up, however, causing every analyst in America to return to the statistics in hopes that some additional source of energy can be found in the consumer area.

Some are finding it, some aren't.

Citibank, second largest commercial bank in the nation, "sees no reason why consumer markets should not continue to advance throughout the remainder of 1977," according to its publication "Economic Week."

Chase, the third largest, sees a "slowdown coming in consumer buying." Its publication, "International Finance," for corporate customers and correspondent banks, gives this analysis:

"It is not likely that the consumer share of Gross National Product (rather high at about 65 per cent) will rise further, and probable that it will begin to drop back. That is, consumer spending in the next year or two will rise, at most, about as fast as total GNP."

LIBRARY OPENED — Fayette County Memorial Hospital has updated its medical library. Although the hospital has always had a library, it recently updated medical books through recommendations made by a library committee chaired by Dr. K.W. Chan. Contained in the library are all the basic medical textbooks and Robert L. Kunz, the hospital administrator, said the library will be updated each year. Approximately $2,000 was donated by the hospital auxiliary to purchase the basic texts. Gasoline rationing noises heard

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has his energy team at work on a standby program of gasoline rationing to be used in case of emergency, a coupon system like the one that drew resentment and results during World War II.

Carter wants a rationing blueprint that would cut consumption by about 25 per cent in any new energy crisis, and plans to submit a proposal to Congress soon.

So, once again, they'll be dusting off the records of wartime gasoline rationing, imposed 35 years ago after unsuccessful efforts at voluntary conservation.

The President does have limited authority to order rationing, but administration officials said he wants to outline a detailed program, so that his powers will be clear and so that the nation will know what would happen in a major energy crisis.

The government considered rationing during the Arab oil embargo of 1973-1974, and printed a three-month supply of coupons for motorists. They look something like truncated dollar bills, and they are still in storage. The embargo was lifted before they were needed.

Some of the steps taken to save fuel during World War II have a familiar ring now: reduced speed limits, lowered thermostats, Sunday gasoline station closings.

There's nothing familiar about the price of a gallon of gasoline, though. It averaged 20 cents then, and recently was at about 63 cents.

A Library of Congress study recounts the problems and woes of World War II rationing, but nonetheless pronounces the system a success.

"No one liked it," the study recalled. "There were shortcomings in the basic management... But for all its faults, it worked."

Nationwide rationing was imposed on Dec. 1, 1942, with a minimum passenger car allowance of four gallons of gasoline a week.

That was the A ration, the lowest priority rating, which was designed to let every motorist drive 240 miles per month. Rations were calculated at 15 miles to the gallon.

There were B and C (more gasoline) and there were special allowances for people who could demonstrate to their local rationing boards that they had to do more than the minimum amount of driving. Most people managed to talk their way into at least a few more gallons.

There also were special allowances for commercial and agricultural use of gasoline.

There were 5,525 local rationing boards, and a complex lineup of federal agencies to run the rationing system.

The problems were legion: credibility, with the public skeptical about the need for rationing; a black market, said to have diverted about 5 per cent of rationed gasoline; bureaucratic errors, with the government issuing rationing coupons for more gasoline than there was to be sold.

But it worked. Civilian consumption of gasoline went down by about one-third.

Defiance County was laid out in 1840 between Williams and Paulding Counties, thus breaking the original map plan in which Williams, Paulding and Van Wert Counties, named for the three captors of Maj. Andre in the Revolutionary War, were to join each other. —AP

Ohio Perspective

Records bill debate heats up

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — How far should the "innocent until proven guilty" doctrine be carried in the American system of criminal justice as it is practiced in Ohio?

If you ask Sen. Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr., he would probably paraphrase recent committee testimony in which he argued that individuals should not have to "bear the cross" of a criminal arrest record when they are cleared of an offense.

But lawmakers with the philosophical leanings of Sen. Walter L. White, R-12 Lima, worry that erasure of records would deprive law enforcement officials of the "tools of their trade."

"Madame chairman," White told Sen. Marigene Valiquette recently after an exchange with Celebrezze in her Judiciary Committee. "I think you have a difference here between a prosecutor and a defense attorney."

At least five bills dealing with the expungement issue are before the General Assembly, including Celebrezze's, which addresses only instances where the accused is found innocent.

Several bills were combined in the previous session and, as Celebrezze put it, "they failed under their own weight." This time he is determined to narrow the scope and keep his bill separate from related measures.

It is expected to go to a subcommittee to resolve a side issue over whether expungement is preferable to sealing of records.

Sealing of records assuring that they are available only to law enforcement agents investigating a related charge—would probably be more acceptable to law-and-order legislators.

White, a former assistant prosecutor in Allen County, said he knew of instances where individuals committed crimes and "went free, to the extent of murder."

On the other side of the issue, Joyce Keller of the American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio, said: "It is so easy for the police to compile hundreds of thousands of records to surveil people who have never committed a crime."

A third point of view was offered by Jack E. McCormick, superintendent of the Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation, a branch of the attorney general's office that maintains four million criminal records.

MORE
ADD 951 records bill adv mon july 11
"We cannot jump in the water and not get wet. We cannot expunge and yet have the record available," said McCormick, who appeared before the committee as "an interested party" but not as an opponent.

"If you expunge a record, it is gone, period. It can never be gotten back," he said.
Atty. Gen. William J. Brown's current policy is to return to local officials arrest records of individuals who are not convicted, McCormick noted. But he said there was nothing to compel police to destroy or seal the records.

The bill would provide for expungement at the request of the cleared defendant or through a judicial initiative. It would not be automatic.

Celebrezze, D-25 Cleveland, was noncommittal on a possible compromise.

Firebomb brings accidental death

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A firebomb exploding on his porch this weekend was the last straw for Carl Watson who grabbed his gun, led his wife out the back door and then accidentally shot and killed himself as he rounded the corner of the house.

"Oh, my God, I've shot myself. I've shot myself," the 28-year-old father of a 10-year-old daughter cried out as he slumped to the ground.

The Watson's have been the victims of racial hatred and harassment ever since they rented the one-story house in this city's Chapel Hill district 2½ years ago.

It all started right after they moved in, relatives report, when Watson's wife, Lynn, found her toy poodle hanging by the neck, dead, from the handle of the front door.

Later a city Water Department standpipe across the street was painted with a sign that said "Niggers go home."

The city painted out the message.

Then just last April Watson had reported to police that the perpetrators of the violence against his family had burned a cross on the lawn.

"I just can't tell you anything," an Akron police detective said of the investigation into the latest tragic incident.

A pop bottle filled with gasoline was tossed onto the Watson's porch shortly after midnight Saturday. By the time Watson got outside, the roof was aflame, police said.

His wife said he ducked back into the house and grabbed the handgun before pulling her out the rear of the house. Their daughter, Misty, was with relatives overnight.

Investigators said Watson shot himself in the leg and bled to death before he could get hospital treatment.

"That's all we're going to say," another Akron detective said. "There's just too much talk going on about it before the facts are known. Maybe tomorrow."

One neighbor in this west side neighborhood, who refused to give her name, said there was some resentment on the block about the Watsons living there. The Watsons were the only blacks on their block on Belden Avenue.

"But we didn't all feel that way about them. It's a tragedy that he's dead."

Warm, humid air has returned to Ohio and is expected to continue for several days. Midsummer temperatures were to prevail today and Tuesday with highs today in the 80s and temperatures Tuesday climbing close to 90.

Showers and thundershowers were expected to accompany the warm temperatures through Tuesday. A few light showers formed in the east central counties early this morning and were to occur elsewhere through Tuesday.

A cold front in the upper Great Plains this morning was advancing toward Ohio, but was expected to remain well to the west of the state. Southerly breezes ahead of this front were to continue pumping warm, humid air into Ohio with little relief in sight.

Extended outlook for Ohio, Wednesday through Friday: chance of thundershowers Wednesday and Friday and Fair Thursday. Warm and humid with highs in the mid 80s to lower 90s and overnight lows in the 60s.

Nunn finds out he's Jimmy's cuz

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Since he learned that he and President Carter are distant relatives, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., says he addresses his correspondence to the White House a little differently.

Instead of writing to "President Jimmy Carter," he sends his letters to "President Cuz."

Nun said he learned about two months ago that he and the President are cousins. Nunn said he and the President have the same great-great-grandfather.

Rain to interrupt farming operations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Here is the agriculture weather advisory for Ohio provided by the National Weather Service:

Scattered showers in southeastern Indiana and north central Kentucky extended into southwestern Ohio today. Scattered showers or thundershowers are likely across most of Ohio through Tuesday. Fair weather is expected Wednesday and Thursday, then thundershowers again Friday.

Field Operations — Showers and thundershowers are likely to delay field operations at times today and Tuesday. Some small grain harvesting may be possible in the north and central, but south will be too damp through Tuesday. Less humid air is expected as a front passes through the state early Wednesday. Best chance for harvesting is Wednesday afternoon and Thursday as moist air and a chance of thundershowers returns Friday.

Haying — Field drying of hay will be moderate at times but the length of the rainfree period is expected to be two days or less through Friday. Conditions suitable for haylage harvest is likely in the north half today and statewide Wednesday and Thursday.

Livestock Comfort — Very warm and humid weather is expected again this week. Short periods of relief will accompany shower activity. Otherwise any movement or handling of animals should be limited. High temperatures will reach into the mid to upper 80s with relative humidity in the afternoon near 50 per cent. Plan to supply above normal amounts of water this week and keep plenty of shade available. Ventilating systems in confined operations will have to provide almost continuous exchange of air to keep inside temperature and humidity at acceptable levels.

Fruit and Vegetable Harvest —

Occasional interruptions due to showers are likely through Tuesday, then fairly good harvesting conditions as humidity drops Wednesday and Thursday. Warm and moist weather will increase the risk of spoilage of crops in the field and on the way to market or storage.

Twisters hit Plains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A dozen tornados were reported overnight in South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. No injuries were reported.

Heavy rains prompted flood watches in parts of North Dakota and Kentucky. Isolated showers and thundershowers occurred over Arizona and New Mexico, along the gulf coast, in southern Illinois and in the middle Atlantic coast states. Clear skies and cool temperatures prevailed across the western and northeastern parts of the nation but the southeast continued warm and humid.

Thunderstorms were predicted today from North Dakota, across the Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the lower great lakes to the south and central Appalachians.

Arabs have own gasoline, electricity woes

By GEORGE A. KRIMSKY
Associated Press Writer

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — When an Arab sheik pulls into a gasoline station in the Persian Gulf emirate of Dubai, he is likely to be driving a big gas guzzler and be proud of it.

But he also may have to wait in line for an half hour either because of a shortage of gasoline or station attendants. He may also have to pump his own gas by hand because of frequent blackouts, pay U.S. prices to fill up his tank and buy imported motor oil.

Residents of the Persian Gulf states, which produce nearly one-third of the world's petroleum, are largely indifferent to energy conservation. But some Persian Gulf consumers have more trouble getting their fuel than many consumers in the Western countries that don't have plentiful oil.

The reason for this anomaly is that the Gulf states export more than 95 percent of their petroleum, only recently finding out how much they need of it themselves.

With thousands of big foreign cars being imported every year and booming economic development putting a strain on power sources, fuel shortages and blackouts are common in the Gulf.

But few seem seriously bothered. "Nobody worries about energy in the Gulf," says a resident of Dubai. "Most local Arabs have two large American cars that use a gallon every 12 miles."

BUZZ'N DUZZ'N 4-H

Have you completed your project for judging? The members of the Buzz'n Duzz'n 4-H Club were asked this and how they were doing on their projects, at the recent meeting held in the home of Karen Klontz, brought to order by Diane Davis, following the pledges, which were led by Kristin Herdman. Polly Hoyer gave minutes of the last meeting and they were approved. Susan Kile made a motion to send $50 to the Extension Office for the improvements at Camp Clifton, and Kristin Herdman seconded.

Toni Hoyer, safety leader, reported on "Home Safety" and each reported on accidents in their home recently.

Members discussed plans for the Fair booth and the theme is "Diamond Jubilee." Each was reminded to bring a sample of material for the Style Revue Cards.

"Care of Plants" was the title of Teresa Rhinehart's demonstration. Another demonstration was given by Toni Hoyer and assisting her was Nancy Martindale. "Macrame" was the title of the report.

The next meeting will be held July 13 at 2 p.m. in the home of Susan Kile. Karin Klontz motioned for adjournment and Dee Ann Minton.

COUNTRY COOKS 4-H

The meeting of the Country Cooks 4-H Club was held in the Home of Latina Sanders, when Jodi Hanawalt presided at the meeting. She also led the club pledges. Each told her plans for vacation in response to roll call.

Members attended COSI Columbus for a family outing on July 10. The club also attended the Nutrition Clinic in June at the Mahan Building. Each one took a dozen cookies. 4-H Camp was discussed and the fun of attending. Judging at the Fayette County Fair was discussed, and each told when their judging would take place.

Members were encouraged to enter the Cookie Bake-Off to be held during the Fair. For refreshments, Latina and Kathy Hanawalt prepared a meal, Julia Hidy made a salad and cake, and Jodi Hanawalt brought rolls.

For fun the advisors set the table improperly, and club members wrote down what was wrong. Julia Hidy gave a demonstration on "Proper ways to take things from the oven." Crystal Hidy gave a demonstration on "Preparing Yourself for Cooking." Julia Hidy gave a health report on "Types of Teeth." We played ball.

Latina Sanders opened the meeting of the Country Cooks 4-H Club when club members met at her home. Crystal Hidy led the pledges and roll call was taken by naming a favorite sport.

The next meeting, on July 14, will be the Mother's Tea, when mothers, aunts and grandmothers are urged to attend. We will have our projects completed by the next meeting and books filled out. Latina and Kathy Hanawalt will conduct games "How to Control Fire" was the title of Crystal Hidy's report.

Despite daily power blackouts from overloaded electric stations, many foreign workers get their electricity bills paid by their companies and think nothing of leaving on a month-long vacation without switching off their air conditioners.

In most Arab oil-producing countries, the price of domestic gasoline and oil is subsidized and therefore cheap. A gallon of gasoline in Saudi Arabia costs 13 cents, in Kuwait 15 cents and the emirate of Qatar 31 cents, while Americans pay an average price of 65 cents a gallon and Britons $1.46.

But in poorer oil-producing states, such as the northern emirates on the Persian Gulf, gas prices are not subsidized, and it costs an average of 68 cents a gallon.

Dubai, which produces more than 100 million barrels of crude oil each year, has to import nearly two million barrels of refined oil to meet its local needs.

Qatar imports its refined oil and gasoline from European and other foreign refineries. Because of the increasing cost of supporting oil prices, Qatar is having second thoughts about its subsidy program.

But most Middle East oil-producing countries consider subsidy their duty, and also do not tax motor fuel.

"Oil is a social service in the Gulf countries," said one foreign oil company executive. "Economies don't come into it. Their philosophy is: How can we charge for it when it's coming out of the ground?"

Periodic shortages of gasoline and motor oil in the Gulf come from distribution problems and are neither permanent nor serious. The big energy crisis in the Arab countries comes from a lack of power facilities.

Blackouts are particularly common in the Gulf during the summer when air conditioners are going constantly, more than doubling the power load in homes and offices.

The small emirate of Sharjah, where the temperature tops 100 in the shade and the humidity is more than 90 percent, is now experiencing eight-hour-long power cuts. This means one district of Sharjah doesn't have any electricity one day, and another area suffers the next day.

Even Iran, blessed with water to run hydroelectric power stations, has launched a blanket public campaign to save energy.

Iranian state television and radio regularly urges citizens not to run their appliances during the peak load hours. Factories have eliminated one of three shifts, shops close early and the clocks have been turned back an hour to reduce daytime.

The wealthy oil producing states also subsidize the price of electricity, but because of the heavy load on power facilities and the failure of public appeals to cut waste, some governments are raising electricity prices.

Dubai has announced it is dropping its subsidy for electricity, which cost the state $25 million last year and would go up to $35 million this year. The new measure means that the average family's electricity bill jumps from $50 a month to $200.

Almost all electric power in the Gulf is fueled by gasoline.

The lack of concern about saving energy in the Gulf states is not just mindless extravagance by wealthy sheiks with money to throw around. Residents in the emirates don't like to shut off their air conditioners because the humidity is so thick it can produce a heavy growth of mildew within days without air conditioning.

And the taste of big gas-thirsty cars is not just a matter of prestige but comfort. The big cars have the best air conditioners, and Arabs like to take their entire family along when they go on outings.

Still manage to gain Dodger ground

Reds blow four-run lead

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston first baseman Bob Watson believes the Cincinnati Reds still have a shot at overtaking the National League West Division leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

"They have a good chance, but they're going to have to score 10 runs a game to do it," said Watson after the Astros rallied from a four-run deficit to defeat the Reds, 6-5, Sunday.

"They're capable of scoring 10 runs every time they take the field, but their relief pitchers are carrying too big a load," he added.

Pinch-hitter Joe Ferguson singled home Enos Cabell with the winning run in Houston's two-run eighth inning as the Astros snapped a three-game losing streak.

The Reds took a 3-0 first-inning lead against Astro starter Gene Pentz on leadoff singles by Pete Rose and Ken Griffey and Joe Morgan's 11th homer of the season, a three-run blast into the rightfield seats.

Morgan collected his fourth RBI of the game in the seventh inning when his ground out scored Griffey from third, boosting Cincinnati to a 4-0 advantage.

Cincinnati starter Paul Moskau baffled Houston on four hits through the first five innings, but was removed for a pinch hitter in the sixth after pulling a muscle in his right leg.

A run-scoring single by pinch-hitter Art Gardner and walks to Wilbur Howard and Ken Boswell loaded the bases against Cincinnati reliever Dale Murray in the seventh.

Cesar Cedeño followed with a triple down the leftfield line off losing pitcher Pedro Borbon, 5-4, tying the score at 4-4.

George Foster's eighth-inning single and Johnny Bench's RBI double to right centerfield put the Reds in front again at 5-4, but Jose Cruz tied the score in the bottom half of the inning with his ninth homer of the season.

It was followed by Ferguson's game-winning hit to left field.

"When you're the World Champs, you get a lot of breaks," Watson said. "The Reds are no exception. If we could get the breaks they do and capitalize on them, we would have a much stronger ball club."

Astro reliever Joe Neikro, who surrendered Bench's eighth-inning double, ran his record to 4-3 with the win.

Bo McLaughlin retired the Reds in order in the ninth to gather his second save of the season.

"Los Angeles and Cincinnati are about equal offensively, but the Dodgers have the edge in pitching," said Cedeño. "The Reds are tough, though, and anything can happen."

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Sports Car Club of America officials say they aren't worried that the revived Can-Am Challenge series hasn't yet offered good competition or drawn more than small crowds.

"Remember that back in 1966, the first year of the original Can-Am series, the races were really bad and the crowds were so small it looked like a secret test session," said one SCCA official. "It takes a while to build the series up again."

Can-Am had its heyday back in the early 1970s when big names like Mark Donohue, Peter Revson, Dennis Hulme and Mario Andretti were running factory-backed Porsches and McLaren's of unlimited power.

Padres deal LA double loss

Split Sutters Cubs just fine

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs are leading the National League East Division race because they have a formula.

"Stay close and bring in Sutter," said Cubs Manager Herman Franks, referring to relief ace Bruce Sutter. "Sure, that's the formula ... it has been all season."

Sutter entered Sunday's second game of the Chicago-St. Louis doubleheader and gained his fifth victory against one loss. He also has 23 saves.

The right-hander struck out three batters in the two innings he worked as the Cubs battled from behind to win 4-3 after losing the opener 8-3.

Despite the split, the Cubs lengthened their lead to five games over the Philadelphia Phillies, who dropped both ends of a doubleheader to the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 and 12-10.

In other NL games Sunday, San Francisco swept a pair from Atlanta 5-2 and 12-5, New York edged Montreal 2-1, Houston nipped Cincinnati 6-5 and San Diego took two games from Los Angeles 7-5 and 5-4.

Larry Blihtner opened the eighth inning of the nightcap with a double and scored on Steve Ontiveros' tie-breaking single to give the Cubs the victory. In the opener, Ted Simmons' two-run homer and four singles by Keith Hernandez paced St. Louis' 15-hit attack.

Watson, Nicklaus newest rivalry

Don't count Jack out yet

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Write no golfing obituaries for Jack Nicklaus but light the sky with flares hailing a new king-to-be, young Tom Watson.

If the stirring British Open over the weekend proved anything, it is not that the Nicklaus era is fading and the game is undergoing a changing of the guard. It is that golf now is blessed with two great champions, instead of a single dominant figure, and the ensuing tug o' war over the next three or four years should produce wonders to behold.

Think of it, Nicklaus vs. Watson in the PGA at Pebble Beach in mid-August. Nicklaus vs. Watson in the 1978 Masters, in the U.S. Open at Denver's Cherry Hill and back to the old course at St. Andrews for the 107th edition of this grandpappy of championships.

It looms as a golf version of a barroom brawl. It should well develop into one of the classic sports rivalries of the century. It can be Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale all over again, Muhammad Ali against Joe Frazier, the Yankees and Dodgers in a revival of the baseball feuds of the 1950s.

Nicklaus and Watson—shades of the personal duels between Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen. Anticipation of it can make one's mouth water.

Now that the 27-year-old Watson has beaten Nicklaus this year in both the Masters and British Open, both Tidewater's John Pacella struck out seven on his way to an 8-0 shutout of the Pawtucket Red Sox in International League baseball action Sunday night.

In other games Rochester beat Toledo 4-2, Syracuse scalped Columbus 5-1 and Charleston dumped Richmond 8-3.

In Pawtucket, R.I., the Red Sox just couldn't put anything together against

Anderson holds early lead

Donald Anderson leads after the first round for the Washington Country Club men's championship. Anderson fired a 73 to take top honors in the championship flight.

Following him closely are Doug Dye with a 74 and Jim Polk, the defending champ, with a 75. Three golfers are bunched at 76.

Leading the other flights are: Dr. Ron Walker, 80, first flight; Willie Hatfield, 86, second flight; and H.R. Heckaman, 93, third flight.

The final round will be played next Sunday.

magnificent birdie battles that went to the final putt, there will be some sadists who will immediately start picking at the Golden Bear's bones.

Big Jack, at 37, is over the hill. His putting nerves are shot. He wilts under pressure. It is an old refrain for Nicklaus, once thought too fat and too lacking in fire, who keeps bouncing back to the top.

Already the winner of more major championships than any man who ever lived—a total of 16, if you count two U.S. Amateur titles along with five Masters, three U.S. Opens, four PGAs and two British Opens—Nicklaus showed the world at Turnberry last weekend that he is far from finished.

Watson, who beat him over 72 holes by a single stroke, proclaimed this fact the loudest and most convincingly.

"I beat the best player in the world," he said. "Jack may not be the best striker of the ball in golf but he is the best shot manager, the best thinker. There never has been a man with greater control of himself and his game."

The tribute came after young Watson had survived two days and 36 holes of eyeball-to-eyeball slugging that some observers called a pinnacle of competition that may never be scaled again.

Matched in the final two rounds, they whaled away at each other with precise often miraculous shots and nerves that stood up under ressure like cords of cold steel.

At any moment, either one could have been excused for wilting under the intensity of birdie, record-setting golf. Neither did. And, in the end, Watson's hand was raised in victory in a bout that hung by the tender thread of a single putt.

It may have been the one of six feet the Nicklaus missed for his birdie on the 71st hole. Or it may have been curling 60-footer from off the green by Watson which brought him back to level after being behind three times, by as many as three shots early.

At the finish, they were out there alone—one with a winning score of 268, eight under the best ever in the tournament's 106 years, the other 269. The rest of the field was in disarray, far behind.

Watson proved himself a champion out of the most regal cloth. And Nicklaus, sinking a putt from 60 feet on the final green when his cause was hopeless, showed the stuff giants are made of.

We can hardly wait for the encore.

Can-Am challenge series struggling

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Sports Car Club of America officials say they aren't worried that the revived Can-Am Challenge series hasn't yet offered good competition or drawn more than small crowds.

"Remember that back in 1966, the first year of the original Can-Am series, the races were really bad and the crowds were so small it looked like a secret test session," said one SCCA official. "It takes a while to build the series up again."

Can-Am had its heyday back in the early 1970s when big names like Mark Donohue, Peter Revson, Dennis Hulme and Mario Andretti were running factory-backed Porsches and McLaren's of unlimited power.

Measure designed for home services

Mahoney introduces health care bill

COLUMBUS — Senator John K. Mahoney (D-Springfield) has introduced health care legislation designed to assure home bound patients high quality, lower cost medical services in their own homes.

Senate Bill 331 requires all providers of home health care services to meet quality assurance standards and obtain a license as established by the Ohio Department of Health.

The bill also allows private sector home health agencies to participate in state and federal financing programs upon certification by the Ohio Department of Health.

Senator Mahoney said, "Home health care is a sensitive and effective means to meet medical needs when full-services of a hospital are not required."

Home health care services include nursing, health aid and medical social services, as well as physical, speech and occupational therapies.

"When these services are provided in the familiar setting of the home, there is a therapeutic impact that cannot be achieved in the hospital."

SB 331 outlines standards for consideration in setting up home health agencies. These include:

- Obtaining a license to operate from the Ohio Department of Health. Health Department rules for licensure are designed by the Department in conjunction with the Ohio Department of Public Welfare and Health, Education and Welfare and with professional and consumer organizations so as to allow public input.

- An assurance to provide quality home health service to clients;

- Considerations of administration and governing bodies of the home health agency;

- Competency of professional and non-professional personnel staff home health agency; and,

- Annual quality of work evaluations of home health services provided by the agency.

Senator Mahoney explained home health care is particularly suitable as a means of delivering care to the elderly. With the elderly population growth as it is now, by the year 2000, 25 per cent of the population will be 65 years and older. Projected figures point to the fact that there will be more elderly retired people in this country than the young and employed.

"If we don't start mapping out our future health care systems for these people now, that at some point in time we will not have adequate, affordable health for all the citizens of Ohio," Senator Mahoney said.

The National Association of Home Health Agencies estimates only 15 per cent of the elderly population in the nation who need such services at home receive them.

Senator Mahoney explained that in the Medicare program — the federal government's health insurance program for the elderly — 54 per cent of the nation's counties have no home health agencies certified for Medicare. Nationwide, there are only 2,209 agencies qualified as Medicare providers with staffs consisting of one or two nurses.

Senator Mahoney said, "If these figures aren't bad enough, in 1976 less than 1 per cent of the Medicare and Medicaid program funds were spent for home health care.

"I believe these figures point to the obvious — the fact that many of our elderly are being drastically underserved."

SB 331 does not propose to set up home health agencies as a substitute for appropriate institutional care but rather "offers a less expensive alternative when such care can adequately meet the patient's needs," Senator Mahoney said.

In conclusion Senator Mahoney said "I believe the direction we are taking in the area of health care in the home will prove beneficial to all the people of Ohio. Home health care is an essential ingredient in the health care system since it provides an appropriate and effective service in the continuum of health care delivery."

China may purchase more foreign wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government experts said today that China, which already has bought huge quantities of foreign wheat, may purchase even more for delivery this year if its own harvest prospects continue to worsen.

But the report, issued by the Agriculture Department, gave no indication that China is ready to fill part of its import orders from giant U.S. wheat stockpiles. Instead, China has continued to buy from its traditional suppliers, Canada, Australia and Argentina.

Department officials and many farmers have clung to a hope that China might buy U.S. wheat and thus help reduce the huge stockpile that has depressed market prices. As of June 1, the stockpile was more than 1.1 billion bushels, the most in 14 years.

The report today was in a weekly issue of "Foreign Agriculture," published by USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service. The latest big purchase of wheat by China was three million metric tons from Australia, announced July 4. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and equals 36.7 bushels of wheat.

With the Australian purchase, China now has bought almost 7.1 million metric tons of wheat for delivery this calendar year, the most since China began to import grain regularly in 1961, the report said.

China imported more total grain in 1973 — 7.8 million tons — but that included about 1.6 million tons of corn. Four years ago, the United States was the major supplier of the Chinese purchases.

The 7.1 million tons of wheat bought so far this year compares with 2.1 million tons of total grain imported by China in 1976.

Alva L. Erisman, an analyst in the Foreign Agricultural Service, wrote today's report. He said that the most recent two wheat purchases by China, including three million tons from Canada on May 31, apparently will be used in part to meet the country's requirements for the last half of this year.

Part of the wheat also may be used to provide a build-up in deliveries in the first half of 1978, he said. Erisman said that, "if past buying practices are followed," China may buy more wheat from Argentina for delivery after Jan. 1.

President abandons oil plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is abandoning a swap of Alaskan oil with Japan partly because he would have a tough time explaining such a move to American consumers long warned of an energy crisis.

James Schlesinger, the president's chief energy adviser, disclosed Sunday that Carter decided it would be wrong to send Alaskan oil to Japan in exchange for Japanese-bought oil shipped from the Persian Gulf to states on the Gulf Coast and the Eastern Seaboard.

The proposal was among several under consideration for handling the daily surplus of 500,000 barrels a day expected at West Coast refineries once oil starts flowing at full capacity through the newly opened trans-Alaska pipeline.

Schlesinger's remarks came on NBC's "Meet the Press."

He acknowledged it would be difficult to justify the export to Americans who have repeatedly been told of the need to conserve fuel.

"As a consequence, there will be no exchanges; all of the oil coming out of Alaska will have to be shipped to the states," he said. Schlesinger said Carter decided to abandon the proposal last Monday.

The U.S.-Japanese oil swap had been touted by some administration and oil industry officials as a means of cutting the cost of transporting Alaskan oil to Eastern and Southern refineries.

3 drown in mishaps

NEW BUFFALO, Mich. (AP) — An Indiana youth who swam out too far into Lake Michigan and an Ohio man who tried to save him drowned Saturday, state police said.

In one of two drownings incidents near New Buffalo during the weekend, two nine-year-old boys were overcome by waves of up to 5 feet after venturing too far offshore together, troopers said.

Tommy Bowmar, New Buffalo, was rescued by a lifeguard, but the second boy, Jimmy Gruszka, LaPorte, Ind., was drowned, along with a bystander who had attempted a rescue.

The body of the would-be rescuer — Bernhard Leppla, 43, of Lima, Ohio, who was camping nearby with his wife and two children — was recovered Sunday afternoon.

The beach was closed until the body of the Gruszka boy, who was a summer resident of New Buffalo, could be found.

Girl last seen Saturday

Missing person report received by officers

A Washington C. H. man reported his 15-year-old daughter missing Saturday night, according to Washington C. H. police officers.

Vernon J. Noble, 31, 515 Broadway St., told investigating officers his daughter, Jeanie L. Noble, a student at Washington Senior High School, may have possibly run away with a Columbus man. The police department stated that the possibility was confirmed by one of Noble's neighbors, Pat Harmon, of 819 John St.

The girl was last seen in the kitchen of her home about 8:30 Saturday morning.

Washington C. H. police officers also investigated a report of an injured person about 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Fayette County Memorial Hospital emergency room.

Upon their arrival, Mrs. Janet C. Weybright, 42, of 243½ E. Court St., told police officers she was struck in the mouth during a quarrel in her home. The blow lacerated the woman's lip and required six stitches, according to the police department report. She refused to file charges, the report stated.

French Fiat chief freed

PARIS (AP) — The president of the Fiat motor company's French subsidiary, who was kidnaped three months ago, was released this morning near Versailles.

Police said that Lucchino Revelli-Beaumont was in good health but had been kept blindfolded most of the time since his abduction April 13.

The police said no arrests had been made. There was no indication whether any ransom had been paid. A first demand of $8 million was later reduced. The later amount was not disclosed, but it was believed to have been about $3 million.

A group called the Committee for Socialist Revolutionary Unity claimed it was responsible for the kidnaping. In addition to the money, it demanded publication of a full-page statement, and this was done by several newspapers.

KSU protest

would be no closer than 120 feet from the slaying site, but demonstrators claim that's too close.

Portage County Sheriff Allen McKittrick, whom the judge placed in charge of clearing the hill, said arresting officers will not carry firearms. He said campus police would assist in the operation.

Demonstrators have said that they would resist arrest peacefully by linking arms while being removed.

About 100 faculty members have promised to be at the hill as non-participating observers.

About 300 persons attended a meeting Monday night to discuss tactics for meeting the judge's deadline. Participants reflected two attitudes: stay and go.

Attorney Bill Whitaker, who represented demonstrators in court Monday, said that they probably will be arrested on contempt of court charges. He said the judge could send them to jail for up to 10 days but that after arrest they probably would be set free on bond to await sentencing.

One faction at the strategy session held that the July 21 hearing would fail to stop construction of the annex and that to yield the hill to police today would make it difficult to reoccupy the site.

G. Gordon Liddy to receive parole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who stuck to his code of silence through more than four years in prison, was granted a parole today to take effect Sept. 7.

The early release of the man who sought political dirt on the Democrats in the 1972 election was made possible through the intervention of a Democratic president, Jimmy Carter, who cut Liddy's 20-year sentence to 8 years.

The U.S. Parole Commission set the release date today. Liddy got the word at the minimum security prison at Allenwood, Pa.

His term began on Jan. 30, 1973, when a jury convicted him and James W. McCord Jr., of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping. He was sentenced later by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to serve six years and eight months to 20 years.

Sirica denied Liddy's motion for reduction of sentence on grounds that Liddy "has not shown the court the slightest remorse or regret for his actions and has not given the court even a hint of contrition or sorrow."

But in his commutation order, the President said "the ends of justice do not require that the aforesaid sentence be served in its entirety."

Liddy's refusal to tell the grand jury what he knew about Watergate brought him the stiffest sentence of all the 25 men sent to prison in the aftermath of the break-in and cover-up. He defied not only the grand jury, but also a committee of the House and was held in contempt by both.

He also was convicted, along with White House domestic counselor John D. Ehrlichman, of violating the civil rights of Beverly Hills psychiatrist Lewis Fielding by sending White House burglars into Fielding's office looking for files on Daniel Ellsberg. Liddy received a term of one-to-three years for that, to run concurrently with the Watergate sentence.

City board higher than those listed in the budget," Nestor told the board.

Besides the proposed increase in teacher salaries, the school district's expenditures for 1978 have increased in the areas of insurance and utilities. These expenditures cannot be trimmed if the deficit is not greatly reduced by increased revenue.

Like the teacher salary increase, other expenditures are on a contingency basis until more accurate revenue figures can be determined.

One such expenditure was discussed at Monday's meeting. It involves a $6,000 allocation to purchase band instruments for the district's music departments.

Willis Geyer, a member of the school's band boosters club, and band director Dennis Woolam attended Monday's meeting and requested that the board help the band boosters in their attempt to purchase musical instruments.

The board offered to pay for $6,000 worth of band instruments, if the deficit listed on the 1978 budget was significantly reduced by an increase in revenue.

Also at Monday's meeting, the board approved the hiring of five new teachers and accepted the resignations of three teachers.

The hirings and resignations left only three teaching vacancies in the school district. All of the vacancies are at the high school in English, speech and girl's physical education.

Two of the positions were left vacant by the resignations of Mrs. Christi Satchell, an English teacher and Miss Cynthia Carper, a girls' physical education instructor. Miss Linda Staley, a Title I teacher, was the other teacher submitting a resignation.

Teachers hired were William Harris, a June graduate of Ohio State University who will be teaching social studies at the Middle School; Miss Susan Washburn who will be teaching English at the Middle School; Miss Roberta Huffman, who will be teaching a learning disabilities unit at the Middle School; Mrs. Caryll Rhoad, who will be a Title I teacher; and Miss Joann Rhoads, who will be a half-time music teacher.

IN OTHER action Monday, the board:

—Approved the leasing of the former Sunnyside Elementary School to the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation for the coming school year for $500 a month. The lease agreement is similar to the agreement of past years, but the board noted that a rent increase may be imposed next year;

—Learned that two projects submitted by district teachers have earned state funding for this coming school year. One of the projects is a course called "Body Management" which was outlined by Tery Feick and Steve Ross. The other is a course entitled "Individualized Kindergarten" which was created by Miss Cindy Morton and Mrs. Pam Heath;

—Passed a resolution stating compliance with a federal law discouraging discrimination against handicapped students;

—Passed a resolution authorizing the district's continued participation in a Title IV resource center in Hillsboro;

—Renewed a contract with the Pickaway County Media Center to supply the district with films and tapes for the coming school year. The cost is 25 cents per student;

—Hired Kathleen Bashor as a substitute lunchroom assistant, Dale Everhart as a substitute school bus driver, Harold Armstrong as a school bus driver, and Mrs. Margaret Langen as a secretary and —Accepted the resignation of Violet Williams as a school bus driver, but approved her request to remain as a substitute bus driver.

Finland hijacking ends in surrender

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Two Soviet skyjacksers surrendered to Finnish authorities early today, ending the second hijacking of a Soviet airliner to Scandinavia in 6½ weeks. Finnish officials said the pair would be turned over to the Soviets as soon as possible.

Authorities identified them as Alexander Zabinjak, 19, and Gennady Seluzhko, 22. They commandeered a twin-jet Aeroflot Tupolev 134 Sunday night on a flight over northern Russia between Petrozavodsk and Leningrad.

Interior Minister Eino Uusitalo told an airport news conference Finland had received an extradition request from the Soviet government.

Finnish officials said the men would be returned to the Soviet Union in accordance with a 1974 anti-hijacking treaty between the two countries. The Soviet Union is the only nation having such a treaty with Finland.

In the Soviet Union they face prison terms of 3 to 15 years and could have been executed if the hijacking had caused any deaths.

An official Finnish communique said the first hijacker gave himself up three hours after the last three hostages managed to escape from the plane early today. He was followed within a half-hour by the other hijacker, it said.

Officials said the hijackers had been armed with one hand grenade that, according to preliminary investigation, contained no explosives. During negotiations the two had claimed to be armed with several hand grenades, the communique said.

There was no word on other possible weapons. Earlier an airport spokesman said no weapons were carried by the hijackers when they walked out of the plane and surrendered, about 36 hours after seizing the jetliner.

"The aim of the government was to avoid bloodshed," Uusitalo said. He said the government withheld information during the negotiations because "we chose to try a peaceful solution, and we wanted to keep the situation under strict control."

First reports said there had been 79 persons aboard the plane, but later information indicated there were 76.

Watered-down insulation measure okayed by solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A senator has won 30-0 floor approval of a watered down measure that could help some Ohioans obtain loans to insulate their homes against next winter's heating bills.

But Sen. Michael Schwarzwaldner conceded Monday night that his measure, after lengthy hearings in committee, had emerged as "a mere shadow of its former self."

Schwarzwaldner, D-16 Columbus, serving his first term in the legislature, wanted to require Ohio's gas and electric utilities to make the loans.

But after strong lobbying by utilities among the nine members of the Senate Energy and Public Utilities Committee, the bill provides only that utilities will furnish consumers with "lists" of where to find insulation suppliers, contractors, and lending institutions.

His bill was sent to the House as the upper chamber returned from the weekend a day ahead of the lower chamber to begin deliberations for the week. The House was to convene today, with a handful of routine measures on its calendar.

Senators also approved a bill extending the life of the Ohio Joint Underwriters Association (JUA), a program the legislature established to aid doctors and hospitals in obtaining medical malpractice insurance.

The JUA was created in July 1975 to help resolve a malpractice insurance crisis in Ohio, and apparently helped. But senators said Monday night that the market still is unstable, and that the program needs a two-year extension until Dec. 31, 1980.

Presently, the JUA self-destructs on Dec. 31, 1978, but is prohibited from writing any new policies after next Dec. 31. Sen. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, whose bill went to the House 28-1, said JUA is providing at least partial coverage for 130 of Ohio's 240 hospitals, and about 3,600 of its 14,000 physicians.

O'Shaughnessy said three new private companies have been formed to write malpractice insurance in Ohio, indicating "a bright spot" in the overall problem, but that their operations are moving slowly.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market was mixed today amid continuing doubts about economic prospects in the coming months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell almost a point in the early going.

Gainers and losers stood about even in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market continued to be inhibited by forecasts of a slowdown in the growth of business activity later this year or in 1978.

Today's early prices included Phillips Petroleum, up 1/4 at 31 1/4; Continental Telephone, ahead 1/4 at 17 1/4; Howard Johnson, 1/4 higher at 10 1/4; and Texaco, unchanged at 29 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average posted a 2.46 loss to 905.43.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a narrow margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 19.79 million shares from 23.82 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .16 to 54.65.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .19 at 121.79.

Opinion And Comment

Split-level postage plan

Why should one American citizen pay more for a government service than another citizen pays for precisely the same service? That is the question raised by Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar's new postal rate proposal.

The proposal comes on the heels of President Carter's suggestion in a letter to Bailar that some sort of "citizen rate" be adopted. In response Bailar is recommending a boost in first-class rates to 16 cents for businesses, meanwhile retaining the 13-cent rate for individual or household mail.

This is a bad idea. It plays hob with the cherished principle of equal treatment under the law.

We believe President Carter should have given the matter more thought before suggesting such a thing, and Bailar before formally proposing it. In our opinion the Postal Rate Commission should reject the plan.

Consider an example of how it would work: A small businessman - the proprietor of a shoe store, say - sends out his monthly billings in envelopes with 16 cents postage, and gets back his payments in envelopes bearing only 13-cent stamps. This is grossly unfair to the businessman, who must pay some 23 per cent more than his customer for this mail service.

There is a special air of absurdity about the contemplated litmus test, so to speak, for determining how much postage a first-class letter must carry. The 13-cent rate would apply to any letter whose address - or even just its return address - was handwritten. All others would cost 16 cents.

In making his proposal Bailar expressed the pious hope that the 13-cent rate on an ordinary one-ounce letter would "have a long life". The apparent rationale is simple: the rates can be raised to 16 cents on a lot of mail without getting any squawks from the general public. This approach to lessening the Postal Service deficit is hypocritical, and smacks of state populism.

THESE DAYS....By John Chamberlain

The busybodies are always with us

Everywhere you turn you find the professional busybody at work. Summer tennis camps in college towns, where local university infirmaries are readily available, are told they must hire redundant resident nurses of their own.

The agitation for Federal inspection of camps of all kinds continues. The Naderites are cranking up their crusade to pile a super-consumer protection agency on top of all the other regulatory agencies.

OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) has been forced by court decisions to desist in its invasions of factories and even private homes without bothering with the formality of obtaining search warrants, but the OSHA bureaucracy hasn't been disassembled.

The states are often as bad as the Federal government in straining at gnats to force compliance with bureaucratic fancies. This week, if things go on schedule, private schools in Wisconsin that take pupils in the early grades will learn whether or not they are to be considered "day care centers" and hence subject to a state licensing law. A "John Doe" hearing conducted by the Waukesha County District Attorney will determine the fate of the Academy of Basic Education of Brookfield, Wisc., which starts its lower school with tuition for 4-year-olds at $800 per year, a sum that indicates all by itself that it is not in the baby-sitting market.

The irony is compounded when one considers that Wisconsin law exempts public and parochial schools from the baby-sitting category. If the court decision goes against the Academy of Basic Education, it will mean that the "equal protection" clause of the U.S. Constitution does not hold in Wisconsin.

I don't know anything from personal experience about the Academy of Basic Education, but Russell Kirk, an authority in the field of both private and public education, speaks highly of it. It takes children at an early age in order to get a running start in cultivating such basic skills as phonics. The school is long on Latin and Greek, but leaves such things as driver training and home economics to the parents. Reading the school catalogue, one can see why the Academy of Basic Education's executive director, Robert Emmet Moffit, is outraged to be called a proprietor of a "day care" center.

"We are not a nursery school," says Dr. Moffit. In an open letter to both parents and the state baby-sitting license authorities, Dr. Moffit says "a clear and specific academic mission; it is an institution dedicated to instruction in the 'basic' scholastic skills beginning with the Lower Form 4-year-old classes. . .to accept the government's licensure would be tantamount to accepting government regulation and control of our Lower School program. That control, and the myriad of evils inevitably following in its train, is anathema to our special competitive character, our spirit of independence, our freedom, indeed our very reason for existence. No one with any realistic understanding of the impact of government licensure can fail to appreciate the actual or potential regulatory consequences: control of facilities, curriculum, hiring and firing, . . . such a measure would invite the bureaucratic imposition of standards or guidelines incompatible with our values and our scholastic objectives. . ."

If a school with a rigorous academic program can be considered a "day care center" within the meaning of the law, it argues that bureaucratic public officials are definitely in need of some remedial reading instruction in order to qualify for their jobs. One would hope that Wisconsin judges would prescribe putting certain Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services employees in Dr. Moffit's "basic" classes for 4-year-olds. They badly need some skills that would lead to proficiency in looking things up in a dictionary.

The bureaucrats never sleep in their efforts to put individual private educators in the same leading strings that give the state the right to impose such things as quotas on schools that take Federal money. By perverting the language, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare tried to force federally policed "affirmative action" on Hillsdale College in Michigan merely because Hillsdale's Dr. George Roche has accepted students who are the beneficiaries of GI money. Dr. Roche has vigorously denied that this makes Hillsdale the "recipient" institution within the meaning of the law.

Dr. Moffit of the Academy of Basic Education sounds like another George Roche. With a few more voices such as these, we could begin to get somewhere in the campaign to get rid of the bureaucratic busybody.

"I KICKED IT, PULLED THE PLUG, BUT IT STILL WON'T STOP."

Beef promotion plan gets mixed reaction

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Americans would be urged to eat a lot more beef if cattlemen in Ohio and the rest of the nation approve a controversial program to raise more research and promotional money.

An estimated $30 million-$40 million could be raised if the program, called a national check-off, is approved in voting July 5-15. That's enough to buy at lot more billboard space than is now devoted to promotion. Currently, about $4 million is raised through a variety of state check-offs.

The program would collect three-tenths of one percent on the sale of every head of cattle. That's $1.20 on a 1,000-pound steer at current market prices of about 40 cents per pound. Farmers could obtain a refund if they apply within 60 days of the sale.

Supporters of the check-off proposal are concerned about declines in beef consumption, publicity linking beef with high cholesterol levels in humans and a shift to the purchase of lower-priced cuts.

"Beef has less money in advertising than any other commodity," said Duane Demmitt, chairman of the Ohio Beef Marketing Committee and a cattleman from Troy, Ohio. "They spend more to promote prunes than they do beef."

Carl Harsh, director of the Ohio Beef Marketing Program, sees the national check-off as a means to obtain research money to combat studies linking meat with high cholesterol levels and cattle-feder growth hormones with cancer. Harsh would also like to see more money spent in educating homemakers on ways to prepare beef dishes.

Charlie Nash of the Farmers Union is strongly opposed to the check-off. He said he fears farmers won't be adequately represented on the 68-member board which will determine how the money is spent. He sees the possibility of board members taking pleasure trips abroad to promote beef sales. And he said the check-off will pit one meat product against another and promote the sale of foreign as well as domestic beef in the United States.

The Ohio and American Farm Bureau Federations have taken a neutral position in the check-off campaign.

Ohio supporters of the program predict a close victory here but they're not so sure nationally. "I expect a close vote but I expect it will pass," Demmitt said. "The fellows in the cattle feeding business are really pushing it."

For passage, the check-off needs at least two-thirds approval of at least half the cattlemen registered to vote. About 295,000 cattlemen are registered nationally with 7,300 of them in Ohio.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Wants divorce-temporarily

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 16 years and have four children. The oldest is 15 and the baby is 2. My husband (I'll call him "Joe") is a NCO in the U.S. Army. I thought our marriage was solid, but when he came home last month after serving 13 months in Korea, he seemed quiet and moody. Then he dropped a bombshell in my lap when he told me he had "fallen in love" with an 18-year-old Korean girl who is now four months pregnant with his child!

He says he loves me but can't turn his back on this girl because when she was 17, she had a baby by a Canadian soldier who deserted her.

Joe wants to divorce me, go back to Korea, marry this girl and bring her (and her child) here, so she can have her baby here. He says in time she may find another man to love and marry her, then he'll divorce her and marry me.

Joe is 38 and I am 35. I know he really loves me, but he feels guilty about what he did in Korea and takes pity on this girl. I told him I loved him too much to divorce him. (Was that wrong?)

I know if I let him go marry her, he'll regret it later. What do you advise?

HEARTSICK IN TEXAS
DEAR HEARTSICK: I think you're wise to hold off rushing into a divorce. Although Joe doesn't deserve any good conduct medals for his behavior in Korea, it's to his credit that he's willing to accept the responsibility for his actions.

An alternative plan would be to send the Korean girl money for her confinement and child support. It makes more sense than breaking up a 16-year-old, four-children marriage so that he can hastily marry a 18-year-old girl, divorce her later and remarry you again.

The word from here is to hang in there and keep your marriage intact. Good luck. Let me know what you decide to do. I care.

DEAR ABBY: SINGLE SIMON wrote to say that as a bachelor he is through accepting party invitations unless he can bring his own date. And you said that most hostesses invite bachelors to provide escorts for the single women.

The concept that most bachelors are invited to parties only to provide escorts for single women is a screaming insult to all single men!

Why must a party have to have equal numbers of men and women? There is no need for a man and woman to feel out of place at a party without a partner unless, of course, the party is an orgy.

SINGLE BY CHOICE
DEAR SINGLE: For my part, guests should be invited to parties for their personalities and not to balance the number of males and females. (P.S. I've never attended an orgy, but I am under the impression that any number can play.)

DEAR ABBY: How can a woman tell for certain whether a man's proposal of marriage is sincere?

PROPOSED TO
DEAR PROPOSED: If a woman doesn't know a man well enough to know whether he's sincere to bluffing, she doesn't know him well enough to marry him.

At Kiwanis Club meeting

Memorial scholarships presented

Two memorial scholarships were presented to two students at a ladies night dinner meeting of the Washington C. H. Kiwanis Club Monday night in the Terrace Lounge.

The two scholarships were established this year by Mrs. Richard Kilian in memory of her late husband, Richard F. Kilian, who had been an active Kiwanis member. Mr. Kilian was a past president of the local club and also a past district lieutenant governor.

Receiving the scholarships were Brant Richard Dunn and Jeff DeWeese. The four Kiwanis Club scholarships were presented to Teri Warnock, Joseph Robert Black, Robyn Jayne Lambert and Paul Lockman.

Michael Campbell, general chairman of this year's teen talent show, presented special awards to Bret Longberry, Gary Browning and Paula Campbell for their assistance in the annual event.

Club members were reminded by Harold Heckman of the annual Kiwanis ice cream social which will be held on the Courthouse lawn Friday, July 22 in conjunction with the annual Old-Fashioned Bargain Days event. The serving hours will be 4 to 9:30 p.m. George Gibbs reminded club members of the help which will be needed during the Fayette County Fair while handling the fair gate admissions. This is an annual Kiwanis Club project.

The Rev. Philip Brooks, associate pastor of the Grace United Methodist Church, was the speaker for the program.

Rev. Brooks, dressed in a full length white cotton D'Hoti, shared a recent trip to Ceylon, Nepal and India with those present. In addition to his outfit from India, he showed jewelry, currency, carvings, pictures made of straw, and a jewel box which were souvenirs of his trip.

After a short discussion of his trip, Rev. Brooks proceeded to show color slides depicting these three countries, accompanied by an excellent commentary. The cultures of the countries and the mission work were covered in detail.

The trip was planned when Rev. Brooks was asked to serve as best man at the wedding of a Methodist minister in Ceylon with whom he had attended Asbury Divinity College in Kentucky. The wedding, on Jan. 5, was held in the largest Methodist church in Ceylon with 800 persons present.

Nepal was the next country visited with Mr. Everest and the Himalaya Mountains. Nepal, he said, is the only kingdom theocracy. In the country the king and God are one person.

His trip ended with a visit to India, which he said is truly a land of contrasts.

Rev. Brooks had pictures showing where Gandhi was killed and the memorials which have been erected in his memory.

He emphasized the need to share with others and closed the program with a Hindu song meaning "Victory through Jesus the Messiah."

The meeting was conducted by club president Tom Mossbarger. The program was arranged by George Lundberg.

A 14-year attendance pin was presented to Charles Wagner by Gerald Begin.

Hot and humid weather has returned to Ohio accompanied by showers and thundershowers.

Rather hot and humid conditions were to prevail over the state today with temperatures reaching the low 90s west and south this afternoon.

Scattered thundershowers were forecast for today and tonight with a chance of a few showers or thundershowers lingering in the south Wednesday.

A weak cold front moving into Ohio tonight was to bring an end to the thundershowers, lowering temperatures and humidities Wednesday across the northern counties.

Extended outlook for Ohio, Thursday through Saturday: fair Thursday and Saturday and a chance of thundershowers Friday. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Columbia Gas sets deal for reserve

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbia Gas of Ohio is on the verge of closing a deal for six billion cubic feet of out-of-state gas to shore up emergency supplies, a spokesman for the utility has informed Gov. James A. Rhodes.

The additional fuel could ease curtailments next winter on industries dependent on gas and unable to use alternate energy sources, the Columbia spokesman said Monday at a meeting in the governor's cabinet office. Details of the pending agreement were not disclosed.

Rhodes, in remarks to newsmen, insisted that Ohio drillers can produce enough home-state gas from wells within the state to meet shortfalls in demand next winter.

"We believe we have enough Ohio gas that we can help all of the companies and try to meet the disaster we had last winter," Rhodes said at a news conference.

The governor left a two-day energy conference with President Carter and other governors unconvinced that Carter's conservation-oriented program was the solution to the shortages.

"That is not the answer," he said. "The answer is more production." Rhodes wants 400 more wells drilled in Ohio fields before the start of the next heating season Nov. 1. "We have enough gas to carry us through," he said.

But he said a proposal in Congress to impose federal controls on intrastate gas "would wreck the state of Ohio."

Jerry Jordan, a Columbus attorney who is chairman of the governor's committee on self-help gas, said two companies have started using interstate pipelines of Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. to transport Ohio gas.

The Federal Power Commission, which regulates interstate lines, has not taken action to halt the move, Jordan said, although a "great deal of resistance" has surfaced among the FPC staff. Jordan identified the two Ohio self-help firms as Marion Power Stove of Marion, and Sun Ray Stoves of Delaware.

Portsmouth happy with A-work

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — To the residents of Portsmouth, a southeastern Ohio river city wallowing in 14 per cent unemployment, Monday's green light for the uranium enrichment plant addition next door at Piketon was "the greatest thing that's ever happened to this community."

"We are naturally very happy about the announcement," said Mayor Robert Jones.

"As with everyone in the area, I'm elated," said James Secrest, executive manager of the Portsmouth Area Chamber of Commerce.

To Wanda Conley of Lucasville "it may mean work for my son."

News of the Energy Research and Development Administration's announcement Monday in Washington to proceed with the full $4 billion-plus expansion of the Piketon plant caught area officials by surprise.

"I was stunned because there was some indication the announcement would not be made until this fall," said Secrest. "I was shocked—but I was quite pleased to hear about it. Just walking up the street, every businessman, you could see a new smile on their face."

The continuing saga of the "atomic plant," as natives refer to it, has had residents on edge for months with a flood of stop-go announcements from Washington, campaign promises made and for a while forgotten, and maneuvering by politicians in Ohio and Tennessee.

"All that had an adverse effect, Secrest said. "It was 'go,' then it was put on hold. And all that talk about Oak Ridge (Tennessee—an alternate site considered). People became very tight-lipped. Now this has had a very positive effect on the whole community."

"A great number of people have been working a long time to secure this," said Mayor Jones. "We thought we had it on gas diffusion. Then it went to a centrifuge operation and it started the fight all over again. Now it finally appears we will be successful in locating the plant here. It will mean a great deal to Portsmouth, which has the highest unemployment rate in Ohio."

For Glenn Ison, financial secretary of Plumbers and Steam Fitters Local 577, the announcement was "the greatest thing that has ever happened to this community — for to the tri-state area."

The 450 members of Local 577 have been out of work much of the last two years. About 100 men found some work out of the Ashland, Ky., local across the river. All now are now busy on an addition to the U.S. Chemical plant, but that will end in October, Ison said.

So far him, the uranium plant expansion means "full employment. We will be able to relieve (the unemployment of) several of these locals. We can take up the slack for Columbus."

And for Mrs. Conley, it means a chance at a real job for her son Dennis, just out of high school, who has been able to scrounge only part-time work this summer.

"He went up there (to the present plant) twice after he graduated but they told him they weren't hiring. Maybe now he can get a job."

"This sure is good news," Mrs. Conley beamed.

Lima school board in surprise motion

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An administrative law judge on Monday took under advisement a Lima school district surprise motion that could delay the hearing there on charges the school board deliberately segregated elementary schools.

The motion came after school attorney Frank Cory spent nearly 1½ hours questioning Ortha O. Barr, director of the Cleveland Office of Civil Rights, a division of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

In response to questions, Barr admitted HEW does not yet have a program by program analysis of areas which would be effected if the district lost federal funds.

HEW has charged the city school board "created and maintained" segregated elementary schools. The district faces the loss of federal funds if it is found to have caused segregation in those schools. Judge John C. Castelli, an administrative law judge, will make that determination at the end of the current hearings.

Cory contended "such a program by program analysis must be initiated prior to start of a hearing" on allegations of noncompliance with Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Citing court cases to back his contention, Cory said "We would ask the court to recess the proceedings until such an analysis is presented" to the school district.

Jack Gould, co-counsel for HEW, said he could not adequately argue against the motion since he had so little time to prepare for it. He said, however, that two other recent court cases show the proceedings could take place without the analysis Cory asked for.

The judge asked both lawyers to provide copies of the court cases they had cited in regards to Cory's motion. Castelli also promised to make a decision on the motion as soon as possible.

Also in court Monday Cory drew attention to a 1975 letter in which HEW outlined its charges against the district and he zeroed in on figures HEW presented regarding one school's racial makeup in the early to mid 1950s.

Cory contended that the school had always been predominately white, not black as HEW charged and that it had been changing to a closer white-black balance right along.

Schools lose state charter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Board of Education on Monday revoked the charters of two Trumbull County school systems for not meeting minimum state standards.

Effective next month Southington Local and Bristol Local schools will lose state funding.

Also on Monday the board agreed to spend nearly $2.5 million for educational television instruction during the 1977-78 school year.

The board approved nine grants ranging from $6,953 for five new instructional telecourses to $1.7 million for preliminary contracts for broadcasting services to the state's schools next year.

But the board rejected a proposal to allow state schools to offer a 16-hour driver education course and voted instead to retain the 60-hour course.

A Bloomingburg man was found guilty of driving while intoxicated and fined $300, plus costs, by Judge John P. Case in Washington C.H. Municipal Court Friday.

Richard E. Harris, 34, of Bloomingburg, was also sentenced to three days in jail and had his driver's license suspended for 30 days. Judge Case ordered Harris to serve his jail sentence at the Laurel Oaks Treatment Center, near Wilmington and that $95 of his fine be sent to the center.

Municipal Court

The two Proctorville youths, arrested last Friday for petty theft by Fayette County sheriff's deputies, were also convicted on the charges Friday in Washington C.H. Municipal Court by Judge John P. Case.

Raymond D. Perdue, 19, and Bobby L. Nash, 18, both of Proctorville, were each fined $100, plus costs, and sentenced to 10 days in the Fayette County jail. They had been arrested Friday after leaving a service station without paying for $5 worth of gasoline.

Two Fayette County men were found guilty of disorderly conduct when their cases came before Judge Case Monday.

Rodney Kimball, 1424 Pearl St., was originally charged with disorderly conduct in connection with an incident last May 21. He was found guilty and fined $50.

Howard Trimble, Jeffersonville, was originally charged Sunday with disorderly conduct following an incident at the A and M Good Time Bar in Jeffersonville. Judge Case fined him $100. However, the judge ordered $50 of the fine suspended providing Trimble attends AA meetings regularly for one year and does not enter or go near any liquor permit premises (for consumption on premises) during that time.

In one other case Monday, David Rittenhouse, of South Solon, was found not guilty of menace. He had been arrested on a complaint filed by Amos Goolsby following an incident last June 10.

In a proceeding last Thursday, Mary Ann James, of Wilmington, was found guilty of passing a bad check at Kroger Co. food store, 548 Clinton Ave., on April 8. She was fined $50 and sentenced to 10 days in the city jail. Judge Case suspended the jail term providing Ms. James makes restitution to the store.

Sirhan seeking to revisit scene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Convicted assassin Sirhan B. Sirhan's attorney says his client will seek court permission to return to the Ambassador Hotel where he shot Sen. Robert Kennedy in 1968.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who visited Sirhan in Soledad Prison on June 2, said he received the information in a letter from Sirhan's attorney, Godfrey Isaac.

Hahn and another county supervisor visited Sirhan as part of a county investigation to resolve whether Sirhan acted alone in the assassination.

Hahn said Monday that Isaac wants to see if a return to the hotel will jog Sirhan's memory about the shooting. Sirhan's defense at his trial was that he had blanked out and couldn't remember anything about the assassination.

Attempted theft checked

Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported an attempted theft of a radiator occurred over the weekend at the Glass Used Car Company, 2782 U.S. 22-W.

Owner of the company, Oscar Glass, 249 Kathryn Court, told sheriff's deputies sometime between 5 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday, someone tried to take a radiator from a 1971 model Chevrolet Nova which was parked on the used car lot. Deputies reported the upper radiator hose and the transmission line had been cut and a fan shield removed.

The radiator was still connected, the report stated, and apparently the thief had been scared off.

In another theft report filed Monday afternoon with the Washington C.H. police, Ernest Snyder, 70, of 411 Broadway St., stated sometime within the last three years someone took a $125 Polaroid camera from his home.

Post 25 knocks off Fairborn, 7-3

Van Dyke, hitting pay off

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Editor
Behind the strong pitching of David Van Dyke and the hitting of Stuart Foster, John Ackley and Shane Riley, Post 25 had no trouble waltzing past Fairborn last night, 7-3.

Van Dyke, who has not had a particularly good American Legion campaign this summer, baffled the Fairborn hitters and was in trouble in just one inning when he was rattled for all three runs.

The Washington Senior High School product pitched the complete game, giving up three runs on seven hits. All of the runs off Van Dyke were unearned. He struck out three and walked three.

Paul Reed absorbed the loss for Fairborn. He gave up seven runs in his seven and one-third innings of work. All his runs were earned. He struck out two and walked the same number.

Dave Eisenangle finished the game, pitching the final two-thirds on the eighth inning. He recorded both outs on strike outs after giving up a single that scored two men charged to Reed.

The Washington Legionnaires brought the big lumber to the ballpark Monday evening. They banged out 10 hits, most of them in clutch situations.

Van Dyke retired the Fairborn hitters through the first four innings, giving his teammates a chance to give him a 4-0 lead.

Post 25 scored three times in the first inning after two men were out. Riley singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Jeff Elliott was walked and Foster unloaded the first of two doubles to score Riley and Elliott. One pitch later, Mark Tubbs lashed a single that scored Foster.

In the bottom of the third inning, Jeff Estep led off with a booming triple and then scored on a sacrifice fly to center field off the bat of Riley.

Poor fielding cost Post 25 and Van Dyke three runs in the top of the fifth to make the score 4-3. Van Dyke gave up a lead-off single and a sacrifice to put a man at second with one out.

Then, the Legion infielders made two successive errors followed by a double that gave Fairborn three unearned runs and much more comfortable position, just one run behind.

The score remained 4-3 until the bottom of the eighth inning when Washington sealed the contest. Estep and Riley led off the inning with singles followed by the second double from Foster to score Estep.

With men at second and third and two outs, lightly-regarded hitter Ackley stung a pitch to the outfield for a single that scored both Riley and Foster and gave Post 25 a 7-3 bulge.

In the ninth, Van Dyke gave up a harmless single before getting Fairborn on a fly out, a pop up and a ground ball to shortstop.

In the contest, Foster went 2-for-3 with a pair of doubles and three RBI's. Ackley and Estep went 2-for-4, Estep cracking a triple and Ackley coming up with two runs batted in. And, Riley was perfect at the plate with three hits in three trips including an RBI sacrifice fly.

The Legionnaires will take another breather tonight before traveling to Cincinnati to take on Post 111 tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m.

The next night will be their final regular season contest, a home versus London at 6:30 p.m.

Then, beginning on July 23, Post 25 will enter into district tournament action in Chillicothe's City Park.

Richard, Astros baffle Cincy, 2-0

Reds blow chance to gain

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
For Houston's J.R. Richard, pitching is "just like a farmer with his crops: you get out what you put into it."

James Rodney Richard has been putting a lot into his pitching lately, and it paid off Monday night as he hurled the Astros to a 2-0 victory over the defending world champion Cincinnati Reds.

"My arm felt better the last couple of games than it has all year," Richard said. "I had a slight muscle problem in my shoulder that I didn't even know about at first. I started doing exercises and got it loosened up and it really helped. A lot of hard work has gone into my performance."

The lanky Houston right-hander outdueled Cincinnati's Fred Norman, giving up five hits and retiring 18 of the last 21 Cincinnati batters. He also singled to lead off the sixth inning and scored the Astros' first run.

"My biggest mistake was the way I pitched to Richard," said Norman. "You don't get careless with the pitcher."

Even Reds Manager Sparky Anderson was impressed. "That's the best I've seen Richard pitch in a long time," Anderson said. "He was outstanding."

In a light NL schedule, Montreal downed Pittsburgh 4-2 and San Francisco defeated San Diego 5-1.

After Richard, 8-6, singled to left, Julio Gonzalez singled to right and Cesar Cedeno was intentionally walked following a wild pitch to load the bases. Then Bob Watson doubled to right field, scoring Richard and Gonzalez.

"If you want to say we get up more for Cincinnati than we do Montreal or Atlanta, you might say that," Watson said. "When you play the world champions, you seem to raise the level of your own play."

WOODIE FRYMAN

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, stunned by the unexpected retirement of veteran lefthander Woodie Fryman, were looking toward their top minor league pitching today in hopes of filling the breach.

Fryman announced Monday night that he was quitting baseball immediately to devote full time to his family and tobacco-dairy farm in Ewing, Ky. "I've finally made up my mind," said the 37-year-old hurler. Last month he stated that he wanted to be traded after a siege of ineffective cost him a starting job.

He was scheduled to pitch against the Atlanta Braves tonight.

However, he was reinstated to the rotation and had won three straight games although his earned run average remained well above 4.00. He has a 5-5 record.

The Reds' pitching staff, already stripped of experience by trades that propelled two rookies into starters, were expected to elevate righthander Mario Soto, one of the hardest throwing prospects in their farm system. Soto is currently 10-4 Indianapolis in the American Association.

A veteran of 12 seasons, Fryman was obtained last winter in a trade that was unpopular with Reds fans. Fryman and reliever Dale Murray were acquired in the deal that sent Tony Perez, the club's all-time run producer, to Montreal with reliever Will McEnaney. Fryman had been booed by Riverfront Stadium fans since starting the season opener. Fryman called it "a tough decision," saying it was something he had been thinking about the last couple years. "It did not have everything to do with baseball. I always said when I was through I was going to be a farmer and that's what I'm going to do."

Both Sox in first place

Bosox, Chisox turn Sweat Sox

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Hot and humid weather turned the first-place Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox into sweat Sox Monday night but neither winning pitcher was heard to complain.

"It was so hot and humid out there

I'm exhausted, but I feel great," Bob Stanley said after hurling Boston to a five-hit 2-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

"Hot weather, I love it; you can sweat and relax," said Chicago's Francisco Barrios, a six-hit, 10-strikeout 4-2 victor over the Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels made Dave Garcia's managerial debut a success with a late rally that produced a 6-5 10-inning triumph over the Minnesota Twins, the Baltimore Orioles edged the New York Yankees 4-3, the Detroit Tigers outslugged the Toronto Blue Jays 9-7 and the Oakland A's whipped the Seattle Mariners 8-1. Milwaukee and Texas were not scheduled.

The only run Cleveland managed off Stanley was Andre Thornton's fifth-inning homer. But by then, the Red Sox had given the rookie all the support he needed with a run in the second inning on Butch Hobson's double and Denny Doyle's single and another in the fourth on singles by Carl Yastrzemski, Carlton Fisk and George Scott.

The triumph kept the Red Sox one-half game ahead of Baltimore in the AL East, with the Yankees dropping 1½ back. In the West Division, the surprising White Sox lead Minnesota by 4½ games and Kansas City by five.

Barrios, a 24-year-old Mexican, was in command after the Sox staked him to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Ralph Garr and Alan Bannister. Jorge Orta's two-run double, an infield out and Chet Lemon's sacrifice fly.

"I pitched last Monday and had six days' rest, so I really felt strong," he said after boosting his record to 9-3 with his sixth consecutive victory. "I set them up with my slider and struck them out with the fast ball. All my strikeouts were on the fast ball."

"He has all the tools. There's no telling what he can do; there's no limit," said Chicago skipper Bob Lemon, a Hall of Fame pitcher. "If he concentrates, watch out. He got a three-run lead and was toying around. Then, when Kansas City scored a run, he really got serious."

Angels 6, Twins 5
Dave Chalk scored the winning run on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Minnesota reliever Dave Johnson in the bottom of the 10th inning. Chalk was hit by a pitch to start the 10th and was sacrificed to second. Ron Jackson and Willie Aikens both walked—Jackson intentionally—before Johnson uncorked the wild pitch when he stumbled and literally fell off the mound while delivering the pitch.

Garvey tops 4 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball fans may be fickle, but when it comes to choosing the National League All-Star starting team, they're very predictable.

The final tabulations in the eighth annual All-Star fan balloting released by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Monday listed seven previously elected starters as returning to the 1977 NL All-Star team.

Steve Garvey, the slugging first baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers, headed the list of returnees as he became the first player to receive more than four million votes. Garvey, winner of the Most Valuable Player Award in the 1974 All-Star Game when he made the NL team as a write-in candidate, was selected as a starter for the fourth straight year. He received 4,277,735 votes in the balloting, breaking the record of 3,497,358 set by outfielder Reggie Jackson, then with Oakland, in 1974.

Selected along with Garvey were second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion, outfielder George Foster and catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, third baseman Ron Cey of Los Angeles, and outfielders Greg Luzinski of the Philadelphia Phillies and Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Over-all, a record 12,562,476 ballots were tabulated this season, more than four million above the previous mark of 8,370,145 set last year.

The American League starters will be announced today, and the reserves and pitchers for both clubs will be named later in the week by the managers—Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati and Billy Martin of the New York Yankees.

Morgan, a seven-time All-Star and a starter for the sixth year in a row, was runner-up with 3,309,754 votes. Bench, the only player to be chosen as a starter in each of the eight years of fan balloting, was named to the All-Star team for the ninth time, with 3,262,680 votes.

Cey, an All-Star starter in 1974 and 1975, recaptured the third base spot he lost to Cincinnati's Pete Rose last year.

WHOA!

THE BETTER HALF. By Barnes

Plentiful produce expected

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Despite the western drought and the eastern freeze, there should be plenty of produce on grocers' shelves this summer, although shoppers looking for a particular variety of fruit or vegetable may have to hunt harder than usual.

Kent Christensen of the Food Marketing Institute was quoted recently by Supermarket News, a trade publication, as saying, "I don't see really any impact (of the drought) to speak of, on fruits and vegetables. Relative to last year, things look pretty good."

The outlook varies, however, from item to item. Christensen told a conference in Arizona, for example, that production of freestone peaches will be above that of 1976, while supplies of the cling variety will be down about 6 per cent.

Women given Indiana week

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There's Father's Day, Mother's Day and Women's Week! Maybe it's time for the men to seek equal rights and demand a Men's Week, but this week is reserved for the women in Indiana by proclamation of Gov. Otis R. Bowen.

The start of the gala week of activities, programs and displays featuring Hoosier women begins today in the Statehouse Rotunda with Secretary of State Larry Conrad's wife, Mary Lou, in charge.

In Focus by Charlie Pensyl

Last week we were in Colorado shooting pictures and enjoying the photographic hobby just like thousands of others. I kid you not, it looked like everybody was out there shooting up a storm and exposing film faster than it could be produced. We were surprised at what a high per cent of these folks were using SLR equipment; and most seemed to be Pentax. We were using our Pentax ES cameras and exposing mostly Agfachrome film, though we did shoot some Kodachrome 25 and we had saved back some Ektachrome X for our vacation. Why Ektachrome X? Well, the newer Ektachromes are too new to be sure of the results and I like to be familiar with a new film before taking it on vacation.

For years, now, Agfachrome has been our film of choice of general vacation shooting because of the beautiful nature colors it produces. If you haven't tried Agfachrome for general shooting you've missed something. Many seem to think the new Ektachromes will have the color quality of Agfachrome, but we'll have to wait and see. Right now we know what Agfachrome will do and we're happy with it.

Opening lead — nine of spades.

Let's say you're in six clubs doubled and West leads the nine of spades. You win with the ace and play a low trump to dummy. When West follows suit with the ten you play dummy's king, whereupon East shows out, discarding a spade.

This is a disappointing development, and it now seems that you must go down at least one. But if you study the situation closely, a faint glimmer of hope begins to emerge. You can still make the slam if West has exactly 3-3-3-4 distribution, as well as the king of diamonds.

In line with this, you ruff a spade, finesse the queen of diamonds, ruff dummy's last spade, play a diamond to the ace, and ruff a diamond. As a result of these maneuvers, this is now the position:

You lead the A-K-Q of hearts. When West follows suit to all of them, you know you've got him over a barrel.

You continue with the five of hearts and West finds that one of his two seemingly certain tricks goes down the drain. The best he can do is ruff with the jack of trumps as you discard the ten of diamonds from dummy. But on his next play he is compelled to lead a club away from the Q-8 and allow you to score the last two tricks with the ace and nine of trumps. Never give up!

Considine Stories Are A Touching Collection

THEY ROSE ABOVE IT. By Bob Considine. Doubleday. 111 Pages. $5.95.

The late Bob Considine had a long and distinguished career as a journalist. Considine traveled widely, met many people, and the stories some had to tell stayed with him.

Some of these stories are included in the posthumous collection "They Rose Above It," a deeply touching selection of pieces of varying length that deal with "the heroism and stoicism of persons who were not born with silver spoons in their mouths, not lumpy with great muscles — just people who discovered in themselves a measure of majesty they may not have known they possessed when the chips were stacked against them. People like you, let's say."

Many of the people who "rose above it" are well-known. There are prize fighter Barney Ross, fliers Jimmy Doolittle and Eddie Rickenbacker, and the great sports figure Babe Didrickson.

There's Ring Lardner, who, while dying in a hospital, was writing a funny piece. A friend came in and found Lardner crying. He asked why. Replied Lardner: "I've been trying to be funny." And James Thurber whose blindness grew steadily worse but failed to stop Thurber. "His output," Considine writes, "during the period most men would consider stark tragedy was phenomenal." And baseball immortal Lou Gehrig, who failed to be stopped by a mysterious malady that slowly killed him.

Others Considine talks about in his book are not widely known but they, too, demonstrated this same courage under conditions of terrible stress. There's the Australian woman named Rosemary who devoted her life to saving the orphans of the Vietnam war, only to see many of those she had labored so hard to save die in a plane crash, part of an airlift trying to get the children out of embattled Saigon. And many, many others.

Considine has left behind a lovely remembrance.

No verdict in deaths

DETROIT (AP) — Jurors considering the fate of two nurses accused of poisoning patients apparently set a record for deliberations Monday, but sources said they were only a little more than three-quarters of the way through the case.

The U.S. District Court jury of nine women and three men deliberated for more than three hours, bringing the total number of hours spent on the case to 81 hours over 13 straight days.

The previous record for any American jury, so far as could be determined, was 80 hours in 13 days by the six-member military jury in the court-martial of Lt. William Calley in 1971. The record for the federal courts here was 32 hours of deliberations.

Filipina Narciso, 31, of Ypsilanti, was charged with murdering one patient and poisoning three others.

TRUCK OVERTURNS — A grain truck (shown here) overturned along Ohio 41-N a half mile north of Wildwood Road about 4:40 p.m. Monday. The driver, Harley B. Payton, 51, of Jeffersonville, lost control of the vehicle after swerving right to avoid colliding with a stalled car (also pictured here) in the northbound lane. The truck turned over on its side and struck a fence after running off the roadway, according to Fayette County sheriff's deputies. Payton was not injured. The other driver, Lloyd R. Gilpen, 25, of 234 Kennedy Ave., was starting a left turn when his car stalled.

Harley B. Payton, 51, of Jeffersonville, lost control of the McDonald and Son Elevator Co. truck about 4:40 p.m. after he attempted to stop and then swerved to avoid colliding with a stalled vehicle, the report stated.

The driver of the other car, Lloyd R. Gilpen, 25, of 234 Kennedy Ave., Apt. B, was starting a left turn into a private drive from the northbound lane when his automobile stalled. The two vehicles did not make contact, according to the report.

Payton was not injured when the truck overturned on a farm fence. The truck received moderate damage.

A single-car accident was also reported by Fayette County sheriff's deputies later Monday afternoon.

A New Holland woman, Nancy B. McCoy, 34, lost control of her car and ran into the right side ditch striking a fence along Bloomingburg-New Holland Road in Marion Township about 5:10 p.m.

Investigating sheriff's deputies reported Ms. McCoy's right wheels apparently dropped off the berm causing her to lose control. She was not injured.

Pilot program on crop woes set

By The Associated Press
Ohio and nine other upper Midwest states are involved in a pilot program intended to provide farmers with an early warning system about potential diseases of major crops.

Plant pathologist Ray Hite at Ohio State University is working on the project in Ohio under the guidance of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Preliminary plans call for a grid of checkpoints every 36 miles across and up and down the state. Hite is arranging now for checkpoints to watch for possible infestation of corn and soybeans, since most of the state's wheat crop has been harvested.

Hite said he is encouraging farmers who have disease problems in their corn and soybeans to report it. A similar check on wheat will begin next fall, he said.

The vehicle was reportedly stolen in Grove City and shortly after its description was broadcast in a police radio alert, about 9:45 p.m. Thompson stated, Deputy David Krupla spotted the car heading south on I-71 near U.S. 35. Krupla stopped the vehicle and took the two boys, ages 13 and 17 into custody.

Upon further investigation, the sheriff said, a briefcase containing approximately $1,200 in cash was discovered in the vehicle. The money was reportedly already in the car when it was stolen, Sheriff Thompson added.

The two boys and the money were turned over to the Grove City Police Department Monday night.
